A SOCIETY EVENT IN WASHINGTON

Marriage of Miss Endicott to Mr. Chamberlain Last Night—The Bridal Party Leaves for Parts Unknown.

WASHINGTON, November 15.—Quietly and simply in the presence of the bride's relatives and personal friends, a few of the members of Washington's official society, and of several hundred of the general public, Hon. Joseph Chamberlain and Miss Mary Endicott were married at 2 o'clock this afternoon in St. John's Episcopal church. The church was absolutely without floral or other decorations, and an awning stretched across the sidewalk to a carriage step was the only sign of any unusual ceremony. No cards or formal invitations had been issued, there were no best men or bridesmaids, and the entire service was characterized by extreme simplicity. Such of the friends of the family as had been verbally invited to attend took seats in the body of the church half an hour before the ceremony began.

The cabinet meeting was ended at an early hour so as to permit members to be present at the service, and they were in most cases accompanied by their wives. President and Mrs. Cleveland entered the church just before two o'clock and were escorted to seats in one of the pews in the first row. Members of the Endicott family and relatives were seated immediately in the rear, while as many of the public as could find room in the little church filled the gallery and hallways.

Mr. Chamberlain entered the church at two o'clock and waited at the chancel. His appearance was the signal to the organist, who immediately began to play the wedding march from "Lohengrin" and the bride, leaning on her father's arm, attired in a pearl gray traveling dress and wearing a dark bonnet, passed up the right aisle joining the bridegroom, and knelt before the altar. Rev. Dr. Leonard, assisted by Rev. Mr. Granks, of Salem, performed the Episcopal wedding service. Both bride and groom gave back the responses in a firm and audible voice. Prayer was pronounced and Joseph E. Chamberlain and Mary Edicott were man and wife.

Again the organ pealed forth and to its strains the party slowly passed along the left aisle, out of the church and into carriages, and were driven immediately to the home of the bride's parents.

A reception was held at the residence of the secretary and the newly married couple received the congratulations of invited guests. After the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain drove to the Pennsylvania railroad station and it is supposed that they went to New York, although their destination was not known even to the bride's parents. They will return to Washington within a week and be the guests of Secretary Endicott for a few days. On the 26th they will sail for Europe.

WE MAY HOLD IT DOWN.

Secretary Thompson Says the Next House Will be Democratic.

WASHINGTON, November 15.—Representative Thompson, secretary of the democratic congressional committee, told a Star reporter this afternoon that he thought the democrats would certainly have a majority of one or three in the next house. They had, according to his information, elected Fisher, in Michigan; Simmons, in North Carolina, and not less than three members in West Virginia. He thought, also, that a democrat had been elected in Taulbe's district, in Kentucky, by an increased majority.

The Vote in West Virginia.

WHEELING, West Virginia, November 15.—Dispatches received this evening by the republican state committee, lead Chairman Cowden to revise his figures, and increase Goff's majority for governor from 76 to 202. A recount in Fayette county gave him an increase of 100, and authentic returns from McDowell make other differences. Owing to the recount these figures are still subject to revision. Later returns give McGinnis, republican for congress in the third district, thirty-five majority. The democratic state committee still claims Fleming's election as governor by 200 or 300, but furnish no figures.

The Arkansas Arrests.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., November 15.—The preliminary examination of Thomas Reid, Thomas Harvey, W. M. Palmer, Wm. Hobbs and J. L. Lucas, charged with interfering with election in Conway county, resulted in the binding over of each in the sum of $1,000. The hearing was before United States Commissioner Waters. The deputy United States marshal started this morning to arrest other parties implicated.

The Republican Wins.

DETROIT, November 15.—The official canvass of the tenth congressional district gives Wheeler, republican, a plurality of 115 over Fisher, democrat.

Cleveland's Majority in Virginia.

RICHMOND, Va., November 15.—The official returns from the state, with the exception of four counties, which will not affect the general result, give Cleveland a majority of 1,586.

THEY KILLED THE GUARD.

One Was Sent Up for Life and the Other Died on the Gallows.

WATERLOO, N. Y., November 15.—Charles Johnson was hanged at twenty minutes past ten this morning for the murder of John Walters. Two men—Johnson and Caldwell—were confined in the Waterloo jail awaiting trial on the charge of horse stealing, on the day of the crime, January 10th, 1887. When on morning of that day Guard John Walters went to the cell where the two men were and unlocked the door, Johnson hit him a terrible blow on the head with a stove shaker and fractured his skull. They then made a dash for liberty, but the sheriff, fully armed, blocked the way and they were driven back to their cell. Walters lingered some days and then died. Caldwell was tried and sentenced to Auburn, for life. The trial of Johnson resulted in his execution today.

JUSTICE CHEATED.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., November 15.—Fritz Anshlag, a German who was to have been executed Friday for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Hitchcock at Garden Grove in January last, and who, in a statement made a few days ago, also confessed to the killing of Julius Feugh, a neighbor, in Butte county in 1885, both of which crimes were committed avowedly for the purpose of securing their landed property or money, took strychnine last night and died at 12:30 this morning. The dying man's paroxysms were so terrible that it was almost impossible to use a stomach pump and all efforts to save his life proved futile. Before the final struggle he stated that he had kept the strychnine concealed for a long time in his cell in a plug of tobacco.

A Deadlock Broken.

BALTIMORE, November 15—The deadlock in the first branch of the Baltimore city council over the election of a presiding officer, which has continued several days, was broken tonight by the election of Thornton Rollins, who, though a democrat, was elected to the council by republicans, and his being selected to preside over the council is looked upon as a republican victory, Rollins having voted with the minority.

NEW CASES IN JACKSONVILLE.

A Test Case of the Right of Refugees to Return.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., November 15.—Dr. Neal Mitchell, president of the board of health, reports sixteen cases of yellow fever for the twenty-four hours ending at 6 p. m. today. There were four deaths as follows: Joseph Goodrich, south Jacksonville; Mary Berry, 135 Ocean street; W. A. Miller, south Jacksonville; and Emma Vance, Brooklyn. Of new cases, seven were whites and nine colored. Total cases to date, 4,568; total deaths, 396.

A test case in the ordinance forbidding the return of refugees came up today. W. H. Hazen, who keeps a bar and lunch room on Bay street in this city, took passage on the Clyde ship Ozama from New York to Mayport, and came up to town this morning by rail, accompanied by his wife. They have had yellow fever in August, but were never officially reported. They have been in New York for two months past. Dr. Porter ordered them back to Mayport until they can prove that they had the fever. Dr. Leonard, who attended them, is dead. They have the original prescriptions made out by him, which show the regular treatment for yellow fever. It is thought that these and their affidavit will establish their case. Much excitement was caused by their arrival here, the people being unwilling to have fresh food for fever furnished by returning refugees. Mayor Gerow has ordered their arrest if they attempt to come to town again tomorrow.

Mrs. Bryan Taliferro, wife of a well known attache of the first national bank, died at St. Nicholas (suburbs) today.

LEAVING FOR THE NORTH.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., November 15.—For the first time in nearly three months a train load of passengers left here yesterday morning for cities of the north via Macon. The passengers were locked in the car and not allowed to leave it until they reached Macon. The party was gotten up by Mr. C. B. Rogers, and consists of seventeen persons, as follows: C. B. Rogers, C. S. Sturtvall, Drs. L. C. Carr, P. H. Strause, F. E. Donahue and F. A. Broaddus, all visiting physicians returning home after their labors; Fred Lockman, Mrs. Lockman, Mrs. E. P. Pickney, Miss Mary Korney, Miss Ida Giddens, J. H. Mills, William Daliam, Rev. Father J. J. Duffee, S. A. Adams, correspondent of the Times-Democrat; Dr. Sollace Mitchell, surgeon at Sand Hills hospital, and Miss Delane, his head nurse.

A negro was taken suddenly ill Tuesday afternoon at South Jacksonville. Drs. Burroughs and Kenworthy were called and found him with a high temperature and every symptom of fever. He continued to grow worse through the night and yesterday morning his death was considered imminent. A peculiar feature of the case was constant rise in the patient's temperature. At four o'clock yesterday afternoon his axillary temperature was 110 degrees. At five o'clock he died. This temperature is the highest yet recorded in a case of yellow fever epidemic. An autopsy was ordered and Dr. Gibier, the famous Paris scientist, conducted the examination. The condition of the kidneys and intestines plainly shows a typical case of fever. Dr. Gibier secured some of the intestine fluids and will search them for the existence of yellow germs or microbes.

The board of health has apportioned the town of Jacksonville into medical districts and has given the following doctors charge of the same: East of Pine street and Hogan creek to St. John's river, Dr. Cuznar; in city proper, Dr. Knight; west of Pine street, including Hansontown, Burbridge's addition, and west of the railroad with the outlying district, Dr. Canter; Lavilla, Brooklyn, Riverside and all outlying districts north of Hogan creek, Dr. Matthews; South Jacksonville, Dr. C. J. Burroughs; Dr. Daniel, at large. None of the volunteer visiting physicians will be employed hereafter.

The steamship Ostama, of the Clyde line, arrived at Mayport yesterday. She brings a full passenger list, and many Jacksonville people are said to be among the number. A rumor to the effect that these people would seek to enter Jacksonville was rife upon the streets Tuesday. Alderman Wiggins said that if any did so they would at once be arrested and sent away again.

WASHINGTON, November 15.—Surgeon Hutton at Camp Perry, Fla., telegraphs to thet Marine Hospital bureau that there have been no new cases of yellow fever at Live Oak during the past fifteen days, and that Passed Assistant Surgeon Urquhard, now at Du Pont, will establish a fumigation station at Live Oak.

NEW YORK, November 15.—The following telegram has been received by W. B. C. Duryee, secretary of the Fernandina committee:

> Five new cases, one white, Mrs. Ruth Tucker, relapse. One death—an infant. The fever is still increasing at Chester. We are obliged to cut down relief today. Our storehouse is nearly empty anp this draft on Jacksonville is last from there. If possible, get us a shipment of provisions at once. Want is here now, and suffering must soon follow. We are doing all we can but pressure is too great for our means. We must have help.

SEVEN MEN KILLED

By a Railroad Collision in West Virginia Yesterday.

WHEELING, W. Va., November 15.—Limited express train No. 5, coming west on the Baltimore and Ohio road, at 8.30 last night ran into an open switch at Valley Falls, ninety-three miles east of Wheeling, and collided with the engine of an east bound freight which lay on the siding. Both engines left the track, the mail and baggage cars of the passenger train telescoping, but the other cars were protected by the vestibule connection, and suffered no damage. Ed Dwyer, the engineer, and John Stay, the fireman of the passenger train, both residents of Wheeling, were instantly killed. Postal Clerk Hall, of Woodsfield, Ohio; William Clinton, engineer of the freight train, and a brakeman named Conley, were also killed. Two unknown men, tramps, who were stealing a ride on the freight train, were found dead in the wreck. The fireman of the freight train, named Baker, had left the engine and gone into the field. A flying beam hurt his legs badly, but he is not dangerously injured. Clerk Scott, of the postal car, escaped through a window with no worse injuries than bad cuts about the face and head. The passenger train was late, and was coming down grade at the speed of thirty-five miles per hour. The freight received orders to side track, and Conley, the brakeman, opened the switch, but forgot to close it after the freight ran on the siding. He locked the switch open and climbed on the freight engine, where he lost his life. The nearest telegraph station was at Grafton, eight miles east, and the surviving trainmen had to walk there. The train was not able to proceed until after 2 a. m. The bodies of the killed were brought here.

A Printer's Fat Take.

TACOMA, W. T., November 15.—F. S. Simpson, a young man who arrived here from Fresno, Cal., two weeks ago with strong letters of recommendation from the Wells, Fargo Express company, was given a clerkship in the Northern Pacific Express company a few days ago. No bonds were required of him. Monday night he went on duty, and on Tuesday he was missing, and he is supposed to have taken a boat for Victoria, B. C. He had checked off several large consignments of money. One consignment to Benjamin Snipes, Ellensburg, W. T., a large cattle owner, contained $10,000; one to George Palmer, Palmer station, contained $1,000. There are supposed to be other sums. Simpson was a young man, a printer by trade, and worked in an office here a few days before taking the clerkship.

A Lynching in Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, November 15.—A special from Donaldsonville, says that on Tuesday afternoon on a plantation, near this town, a negro seized an eleven-year-old child of respectable parents who at the time was playing with her younger sisters. Flourishing a knife, he took her into the cane field. The screams of younger children brought a number of plantation hands to the spot and the wretch was caught in the act of outraging the child. He was taken to jail, but so great was the indignation that about two hundred persons attacked and overpowered the jailer at night and took the prisoner out and hanged him.

MEN OF MUSCLE.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR AT INDIANAPOLIS.

WILL POWDERLY BE RENOMINATED?

The Proceedings of Yesterday—Masterworkman Powderly's Report anp Explanation—Other Business.

INDIANAPOLIS, November 15.—Delegates and others who are in attendance on the twelfth general assembly of the Knights of Labor have settled down to work, and time away from the convention is largely devoted to committee work, and still much gossip is indulged in regarding the probable outcome of the meeting, both as regards the election of officers and as to the future success or failure of the order.

Instead of repeating his former plain refusals to continue to serve, Mr. Powderly now simply refuses to speak and this fact is considered an evidence of willingness to accept once more. The selection of other officers depends on Mr. Powderly's decision and the action of the general assembly as to a reduction of force.

It is claimed by those who profess to be informed of the facts that the cause for delay in Mr. Powderly's report was that he had given ex-Secretary Litchman a severe handling, and that Litchman, in his reply, had returned the attack with interest. The two were finally brought together, and the matter amicably arranged, and the delay has been caused by the reprinting of the reports, with the "savage" part eliminated. Only two reports were heard at the morning session, both being very long. That of Mr. Powderly was two hours long, while ex-Secretary Charles Litchman took an hour and twenty minutes of the time of the convention.

Mr. Powderly in his report made an extended explanation of the cause of the decrease in the membership. Among other causes he referred to rumors attributing extravagance to the general officers, and the fact that some of the general officers went about scandalizing the reputation of their brother officers. Unwise strikes were also entered upon, which swept thousands of members into poverty. He then said:

"Add to all of these causes the campaign which has just closed in the United States, in which members and assemblies were pitted against each other on a question which never was made part of the declaration of principles, and on which they could very well afford to differ without differing as to any point in the laws or the rules of the order, and we wonder not that there has been a falling off, but that we have passed through the critical test with ranks unbroken as we find them today."

He states that these trials have resulted in good for the order and denied anything like official dishonesty, inviting a thorough examination of the books and accounts.

Mr. Powderly then advocates a consolidation of the executive power into one man's hands, and calls upon the order to give such prominence to the fight against monopolies as to make it the issue in 1892. He strongly condemned the "provisional committee as traitorous in purpose and design. Legislation should be had which would make it impossible for a man who fought the order to remain within it. Let those who fight it remain on the outside. These attacks come from persons, who want the knights to be controlled by outside influence. The organization to which he referred was the International Workingman's association, which for three years has been trying to secure control of the order. Since they cannot control they want to ruin.

In his report, ex-Secretary Litchman gives a detailed statement of his connection with the order from his admission to the present time, and denies in detail all the charges against him. He recommended that the general secretary shall be given absolute control of his clerks, advocated a reduction of the general executive board to five members, consisting of the general master workman, general worthy foreman, general secretary and two members, the money to be placed with the safe deposit.

His resignation was appended as part of the record. He closed with an expression of thanks to the general officers for courtesies and hope for the continued success of the order.

The afternoon session was cut short owing to the general meeting of the Women's Relief corps, as there had been talk of a call on General Harrison, and it was not settled whether to call on him personally or in organization. The following was adopted:

Be it resolved, That we consider it would be very impolite and ill-advised action for any body of men from this convention to meet, or wait upon, as Knights of Labor, the president-elect. Last year exactly similar action was taken at Minneapolis, in regard to President Cleveland, who was there at the time. Nothing else was done at the afternoon meeting, barring appeal, which was looked for being a probability of tomorrow's session.

The Brakemen's Strike.

CHICAGO, November 15.—Everything is quiet today in the yards of the Louisville and New Albany road at 51st street. Five brakemen who refused yesterday to work longer at the present rate of wages, are still on a strike, and there has been no effort today to move any freight. The company have over one hundred loaded cars in the yards, but none contain perishable freight. The strikers were not about the yards at all this morning, but are quietly waiting for news from LaFayette, Ind., the headquarters of the company.

Struck Against a Change in Hours.

PITTSBURG, Pa., November 15.—The puddlers at Jones & Laughlin's American Iron works, 500 in number, struck this morning against the change in working hours, made necessary by the scarcity of natural gas during the day time, at the mills of Oliver, Bros. and Phillips and Wharton & Co. The men have agreed to work the new hours until Monday, when arrangements will be made for a heavier supply of gas. The Pennsylvania avenue mill continues operations at the old hours, and no trouble is anticipated.

The Farmers in Convention.

TOPEKA, Kas., November 15.—The twenty-second annual convention of the National Grangers Patrons of Husbandry commenced in this city yesterday. Delegates are present from every state in the union. Acting Worthy Master James Draper, of Massachusetts, presided.

Memorial services were held in honor of deceased Worthy Master P. D. Dorden, of Mississippi, who died in July last. Standing committees were then announced.

The eighth annual convention of the farmers' congress of the United States also met in this city. R. F. Kolb, of Alabama, presided. The call of the roll showed thirty states represented.

Collision on the Baltimore and Ohio.

BALTIMORE, November 15.—Officials of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad said today that their express train No. 5, bound west, run into a second section of freight train No. 88 at Valley Falls, seven miles west of Grafton, last night, at about a quarter after seven. Both engines and both baggage cars were damaged. Engineers DeWire and Clinton were killed. Fireman Shay was seriously injured akd Fireman Baker was slightly wounded. No passengers were hurt. The accident was caused by the brakeman on the second section of freight No. 88 locking the switch for the siding instead of for the main track.

To be Banquetted Tonight.

RICHMOND, Va., November 15.—The sixty-fourth annual convention of the Chi Phi fraternity met here today, with delegates present from twenty chapters. G. A. Smith, of Ithaca, N. Y., was elected grand gamma, and H. N. Snyder, Nashville, Tenn., alpha. The session will conclude tomorrow. At night they will be banquetted.

A SHORT WINTER SESSION.

Parliament to Abandon Several Measures That Were Contemplated.

LONDON, November 15.—In the house of commons this afternoon, Mr. Smith, government leader, intimated that in order to shorten the winter session, several measures would be abandoned. These would include the tithes bill, Irish drainage bill, and bill for the creation of a minister of agriculture. He stated that the government proposed to ask the house to vote five million pounds for the extension of the Ashbourne act. [Cheers from the government benches and counter cheers from the opposition.] Mr. Smith, continuing, said that the bill providing for this vote would be introduced in the house on Monday next. It would consist of one clause only, and would be debated daily until the decision upon it had been reached.

Mr. Gladstone gave notice that on Monday, when the motion was made, he would, if the proposal meant an addition of five million pounds to five million pounds already spent, move an alternative to the effect that the house should proceed to deal with the question of arrears, and apply to Ireland the principle already applied with such great advantage in the case of the Scotch crofters. [Liberal cheers.]

When the estimate for the pensions came up for consideration, Mr. Dillon moved the reduction of the salary of Dr. Barr, as a protest against his conduct in Dundalk jail.

Mr. Balfour, in opposing the motion, declared that he had never heard of Dr. Barr until he had been selected by the English prisons board to furnish independent testimony regarding the Irish prison discipline. It was through such testimony, added Balfour, that the government had been able to expose the foul conspiracy of which the unhappy Dr. Ridley had been the victim. [Chries of Oh! Oh! and cheers.]

Mr. Dillon asserted that Dr. Barr was well known from the north of Ireland, and a protege of the duke of Abercorn.

Dr. Clark, radical, member for Caithness, denied that Dr. Barr possessed the high qualifications attributed to him by Mr. Balfour. He (Clark) had sat beside Barr as a student at Glasgow university, and he knew him as a most ordinary and dull student. He would vote in favor of the reduction because he believed Dr. Barr to be a disgrace to his profession.

Labouchere said that Dr. Barr had been directly responsible for the two deaths [shouts of "Oh! oh!"] He (Labouchere) did not care for the sneers of the gentlemen opposite He hoped that he and they would always disagree. If he ever found himself agreeing with them, he should be utterly ashamed of himself. [Laughter, and shouts "Oh, oh!"]

Mr. Matthews, home secretary, bore testimony to the high character of Dr. Barr.

The Parnellites continued to debate for some time. Finally a motion to reduce Dr. Barr's salary was negatived by a vote of 116 to 67.

GERMAN MATTERS.

The Press on the Relations of the Emperor Frederick and England.

BERLIN, November 15.—The North German Gazette says that as advanced democratic papers have continued to falsely interpret the chancellor's report to the emperor on the subject of the late Emperor Frederick's diary, it must again refer to the fact that Emperor Frederick, owing to his relations with the English royal family, never concealed his regard for England and its dynasty and policy, not even before his father, who, owing to the good feeling towards himself of Russia and her dynasty, was led into a policy of open discussion, which between father and son was not advisable from social as well as business considerations. Servants of the father were bound by their office and honor not to discuss these matters before the son.

Both the Kruse Zeitung and Post consider the distribution of the western portion of the Russian army as implying a serious advance. They say that Russia's garrisons on the frontier have been strengthened by two and in some cases by three divisions, which are also available for an advance. Semi-official papers deny that a Russian loan has been issued in Berlin, German banks, they say, will hold aloof from any Russian financial schemes, except in conversion operations. Konigsberg is closed to navigation by ice.

A SLOW TRIAL.

The Prosecution in the Times-Parnell Case Tiring Everybody.

LONDON, November 15.—It is expected that the tedium of proceedings of the Parnell commission will be relieved only when the Times produces evidence aiming to connect the accused directly with specific offenses. If the Times's counsel tomorrow continues on the general line of exhuming stale facts or fictions, Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, will make another effort to get the court to order the prosecutors to begin the inquiry. The Pall Mall Gazette, defying the law relative to contempt of court, severely criticizes the course of the prosecution and advises the defense not to waste its funds by employing a full array of counsel daily, but to leave the junior counsel to watch the case, and to bring back Sir Charles Russell, and other leaders, when evidence is produced affecting the accused. Seven thousand pounds of the defense fund have already been expended.

THE POPE AND THE PRESIDENT.

Good Fellowship With Harrison as Well as Cleveland.

LONDON, November 15.—The Daily News correspondent at Rome says: "The change in the presidency of the United States, will in no way have any influence on the personal relations with the American government, of the Roman clergy. President Cleveland is much attached to Cardinal Gibbons. President-Elect Harrison is a devoted friend of Bishop Chatard, of Vincennes, who, although lacking the political influence of Cardinal Gibbons, is very popular with Catholics. Mr. Blaine lays the greatest stress on being popular with the Catholic clergy, and he has ties of friendship with American priests here."

Another Papal Rescript.

DUBLIN, November 15.—The Irish bishops have received another papal rescript. It orders them to actively execute the former rescript which instructs them to denounce the plan of campaign and boycotting. It also orders them to direct priests to preach against agitation and to forbid them to take part in boycotting and the plan of campaign movements which they must oppose with all means in their power.

LONDON, November 15.—The Dublin correspondent of the Daily News says that nothing is known there of the papal rescript, reported to have been sent to the Irish clergy. The archbishop of Dublin, he says, has received no fresh instructions from the pope. The Times does not make any mention of the papal rescript. The Dublin correspondent of the Standard says that nothing is known there of the new rescript. It is not believed that such a document has been sent from Rome. The report originated in Limerick.

Does Not Mean Trouble.

ST. PETERSBURG, November 15.—It is denied emphatically in government circles that new changes in the organization of troops in western Russia have a warlike intent. The object of the movement, it is declared, is merely to develop defenses necessary to preserve the military balance as compared with the forces maintained by neighboring powers.

The article in the North German Gazette excites special comment, owing to the fact that the Journal, which is a semi-official organ, puts for the second time a milder meaning on Bismarck's report on Frederick's diary in referring to the English court. The report that a further demand for military supplies would be made in the reichstag is semi-officially denied.

French Government Works Burned.

PARIS, November 15.—The government works for the manufacture of small arms at Chatteralute, at Vienne, have been destroyed by fire. This will necessitate the suspension, for the time, of the manufacture of the Lebel rifle. The fire is believed to have been due to an accident. The loss is placed at one million francs. There were no fatalities.

KILLED WITH A KNIFE.

HON. JAMES HUNT, OF CATOOSA, STABBED TO DEATH.

A BLOODY TRAGEDY LAST NIGHT

Sully Moore, a Mail Agent, Kills an Old Friend in a Boarding House on Forsyth Street, and Then Runs Away.

Hon. James Hunt, of Catoosa county, a member of the house of representatives, was stabbed to death last night by H. S. Moore, a mail agent on the Western and Atlantic railroad.

The murder occurred at Mrs. Hughey's boarding house.

Mrs. Hughey keeps a place on North Forsyth street, No. 58, and since the present session of the legislature opened has entertained several members and attaches. Among others who made the boarding house headquarters was Mr. Hunt. Mr. Hunt, with other gentlemen, occupied a room on the second floor of the building, and it was in that room that he was killed.

Soon after dark, Mr. Hunt, Mr. George Shaw, Mr. T. W. Jones, Mr. Rucker and Mr. Thurman were in the room. Moore, the man who did the killing, was there too, and was upon friendly terms with the party. In some way Moore and Mr. Shaw and finally Mr. Hunt became involved in the scuffle. The bout was of a friendly character, and was enjoyed by all present.

When it ceased, Moore stepped up to a washstand and began washing his hands. Mr. Hunt was at the same time standing in front of a mirror combing his hair. Moore took the water from his hands with a towel and then turning around struck Hunt upon the neck with it. The towel was damp and the lick was a stinging one. It gave the gentleman some pain and facing Moore he said:

"Moore, if nothing but a scuffle will suit you I'll try to accommodate you."

Moore then took up the bowl of water and attempted to throw it upon Mr. Hunt, but Mr. Shaw interfered and received the basin of water for his trouble. This induced Moore to turn his attention to Mr. Shaw, and picking up the pitcher he tried to empty the contents upon that gentleman, but the pitcher was turned in the scuffle so that the water went upon Moore. This made the mail agent mad, and with all his strength he at Mr. Shaw. The piece of earthenware missed the gentleman and struck the wall with force sufficient to shatter it into fragments.

Moore's apparent anger cooled the fun, and Mr. Shaw sat down upon the bed. Moore followed him, and a scuffle ensued. Then Moore got up and started toward Mr. Hunt. The two men grappled, and Mr. Hunt soon had Moore upon the floor, where he held him a short time. Mr. Hunt's victory, though the scuffling was friendly, made Moore mad, and as he was permitted to rise he struck the gentleman a hard lick with his hand. The lick angered Mr. Hunt, and gathering Moore in his hands, he tossed him upon the bed, saying:

"Moore, I don't want to hurt you, and I don't want any difficulty with you."

Moore arose from the bed, and picking up a stick, said:

"Jim, I have a mind to skin your head."

Mr. Shaw seeing that Moore was trying to

FORCE A DIFFICULTY

stepped in. This caused Moore to appear to become satisfied and he gave up the stick. But in a second Mooce lost his temper agaid, and stepping into a closet, he opened a trunk, and as he did so he looked at Hunt, saying:

"Hunt, you will be a dead man in less than fifteen minutes!"

Moore seemed to be looking for something, but no one paid any attention to him or the threat he made. Presently he arose from the trunk and started out of the room. Mr. Hunt again returned to the mirror and again began combing his hair. The gentlemen then all started down stairs with Mr. Hunt in front, and as he stepped into the door Moore met him. Those present saw Moore and instantly that gentleman staggered back, exclaiming:

"Moore has stabbed me."

Mr. Shaw sprang forward and caught Mr. Hunt as he was falling, and says that at the same time he observed a knife with a four-inch blade in Moore's hand. Mr. Shaw tried to get Hunt to the bed, but was compelled to let him sink to the floor. The gentleman held his hands across his stomach all the time and appeared to suffer intensely. He talked to Mr. Shaw in a rather incoherent manner for a minute or two and then began sinking rapidly. He lived probably ten minutes after receiving the wound.

MOORE WALKS AWAY.

Moore, after inflicting the wound, turned upon his heel and walked out of the room. He then descended the stairway and left the house without any attempt being made to detain him.

The murder created quite a sensation and in a few minutes the sidewalk in front of the residence was blockaded with people. The police department was notified and detectives were sent to the place. They secured an accurate description of Moore, and during the night the city was thoroughly searched for him, but without success.

THE INQUEST.

Soon after Mr. Hunt's death Coroner Manning was notified. He visited the scene at once and instructed Bailiff Williams to organize a jury. Professor Means was made foreman, and the inquest was begun. Mr. Shaw was the first witness introduced. Then F. L. Smith was put upon the stand and was followed by J. R. Darrah. The testimony was all alike, and the jury returned a verdict stating that Mr. Hunt had been murdered and that H. S. Mooore was the murderer.

THE WOUND.

The wound was examinad by Dr. Bob Westmoreland, county physician. It was a stab—a deep one. The knife blade penetrated the stomach a few inches below where the breast bones come together. Mr. Charles Swift, the undertaker, was sent for and took charge of the body. He prepared the remains for burial.

THEY WERE FRIENDS.

Hunt and Moore had known one another for years, and had been the best of friends. They were once close neighbors, and the trouble which ended in the murder was the first they had ever had. It is understood that it was upon Mr. Moore's recommendation that Mr. Hunt went to Mrs. Hughey's. The two men roomed together.

Hunt was an attorney, a married man and the father of three children. He resided in Ringgold, and was serving his first term in the legislature. During the Gordon-Bacon campaign he was a candidate and an ardent supporter of Bacon. He made the race upon that issue, and was defeated by Mr. Harris, He was about thirty years of age, and was a pleasant, affable gentleman. His remains will be sent home today.

Moore, the slayer of the member, is about twenty-three years of age. He was born in Chickamauga, Tenn., and has always been very bright. He is lame in one leg. His parents live on a farm and are very much devoted to him. He has been in the State road mail car for three years. Moore is said to be a steady drinker and just before the killing last night went to Ford's place and purchased a bottle of brandy.

Some two or three weeks ago Moore caused the arrest of a young man whom he charged with stealing a coat and vest.

Moore was to have taken the mail out at 11:15 last night.

The Capture of Moore.

When the Western and Atlantic train went out at 11:15 last night Patrolman Abbott was upon it. It was believed that Moore would attempt to board the train about the Belt junction, and at the junction Abbott left the train. In no time he saw Moore and approached him. Moore was on the alert and ran. The officer pursued him and in the dark ran into a wire fence and was cut up badly. Abbott telephoned into the city from Mr. Jim Collins' residence, and at one o'clock this morning Captain Wright, with a squad of police went out, and after a hot chase after Moore, succeeded in capturing him near Bolton. He was brought to the city and placed in jail.

JUMBO HAS WIND

And Is a Terror to Fleeing Criminals—An Exciting Chase Yesterday.

Two negro bootblacks were having a lively go-as-you-please "slugging" match near the Wall street entrance of the Kimball house yesterday afternoon, and were getting considerable encouragment from the crowd that had been attracted, when Jumbo Hunter arrived upon the scene.

Jumbo was in a dog-trot, his rubber coat was flapping in the wind, his lips were tightly set, and every feature showed a determination to catch the colored pugilists.

One of the bootblacks caught sight of Jumbo and gave the word, "Jumbo's coming."

The fight was called a draw and the colored pugilists had but one desire to get out of reach of Jumbo's arm. They started in different direction, and Jumbo was apparently undecided as to which one he could run down the easiest, but he kept moving ahead to the best of his ability. Jumbo will never make his mark on a record as a sprinter, but the bootblacks he has run down are willing to make affidavit that he is as long-winded as a continued story.

Down the railroad tracks, toward the Western and Atlantic depot the two scored bootblacks were making the best time possible, and Jumbo kept after them in a graceful and enduring trot. The crowds upon the sidewalks cheered Jumbo as he passed, while merchants, clerks, business men and idlers watched the race with interest and delight. Hundreds of people crowded the Broad street bridge and not until the official pursuer of the escaping pugilists had disappeared from sight around the curve of the Central tracks did business resume its usual order.

It is not known whether Jumbo captured the bootblacks, but the following dispatch shows that he does not give up a chase when there is anything in sight:

> EAST POINT, November 15.—5 p. m.—Two negro boys have just passed the station at this point. They were evidently exhausted from a long chase, and a few minutes afterward a man wearing a dingy stiff hat and a rubber coat went by the station. He was looking fresh, and after taking a drink of water from the hose at the water tank continued on after the negroes.

NOT FOR WOMACK.

An Article in Yesterday's Constitution Which Provoked a Smile.

A friend of Mr. Emmett Womack, the popular solicitor-general of the Flint circuit, pointing to the following article, which appeared in yesterday's CONSTITUTION said:

"I would like to know where your reporter got that piece of information. He certainly did not get it from Mr. Womack."

The following is the article referred to:

> Colonel J. D. Stewart, member of congress from this district, spent a few days in the city pending the re-election of his friend Emmett Womack as solicitor general. After this had been accomplished he returned home, highly pleased with the result.

The article created some amusement among Mr. Womack's friends, and it seems as if the laugh is on Congressman Stewart. The story of his connection with this race is told as follows:

Congressman Stewart came up to Atlanta from Griffin as a friend of Mr. Womack's with the intention of doing what he could to have him re-elected by the legislature. He was the judge of the Flint circuit when Mr. Womack was solicitor general, and there has always existed a warm friendship between the two. When Mr. Stewart arrived in the city he found that a tremendous pressure was being brought to bear by Rockdale county in favor of Mr. George W. Gleaton, who aspired to Mr. Womack's position. Mr. Gleaton's supporters from Rockdale county were particularly zealous in his behalf, and approaching Congressman Stewart they notified him that their county was in his (Stewart's) congressional district, and that it would accordingly appreciate any favors which Mr. Stewart might extend to Mr. Gleaton. Just how this affected Mr. Stewart is not known, but it appears that Mr. Stewart at once lost his enthusiasm in Mr. Womack's race, and as a friend of Mr. Womack's said yesterday:

"The distinguished congressman satisfied the Rockdale delegation that Mr. Gleaton need fear no trouble from him. It certainly appears that Mr. Womack did not receive the benefit of Mr. Stewart's influence, and it is reported that the well-known solicitor of the Flint circuit does not cherish a loving memory of Congressman Stewart's visit to the city."

He Goes to Cincinnati.

Detective Bedford leaves today for Cincinnati and will have in his pocket letters of introduction to Billy Hazen.

He will also carry a requisition.

The detective goes to the queen city to get a negro whose arrest he caused. The negro is the one who robbed Farmer Mays's trunk, near Marietta, several weeks ago. Three hundred and eighty dollars of the money which the negro took from the trunk was found in his possession when he was arrested.

A Field Trial.

HIGHPOINT, N. C., November 15.—The Eastern Field Trial club opened today. The attendance was good and entries of dogs large. The member stake opened today. The forenoon was rainy, the afternoon foggy and misty, and the fields wet and muddy. Birds were scarce and hard to find. Gobang beat Noble Count, Prince Helen beat Buckelew, Gloster beat Molite, Royal Monarch beat Don Noble, Brandon beat Count Belton, Nat Goodwin beat Ruby Buckelew.

Heavy Claims Against Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, via Galveston, November 15.—It is stated that ex-United States Minister John W. Foster, who left here yesterday, presented the claims of the estate of Charles Butterfield against Mexico. The claims are for war material and ships of war and amount to over $20,000,000.

The Mexican National railroad company has refused to receive Mexican national bank notes, thus causing considerable trouble.

Getting Things in Readiness.

WASHINGTON, November 15.—A meeting of the house committee on appropriations has been called for Wednesday next. It is the purpose of the committee to have some appropriation bills ready soon after congress meets. Clerks of the house and senate committees are at work preparing an outline of several of the bills.

Death of Mr. Thomas Branch.

RICHMOND, Va., November 15.—Thomas Branch, a well known banker, died today in the 86th year of his age. He was a union man before the war, was a member of the secession convention and spoke and voted against the ordinance, but afterwards signed it.

Two More Bodies Recovered.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., November 15.—Two more bodies were taken from the ruins of the lantern works today, making thirty-seven surely known to be dead.

AUGUSTA'S GREAT SHOW.

GOVERNOR BULLOCK GIVES IT A HIGH PRAISE.

President-Elect Harrison Invited to Attend—The Savannah Valley Convention—The Red Men Meet.

AUGUSTA, Ga., November 15—[Special.]—"This is the greatest exposition ever held in the south," said Governor Bullock, of Atlanta, today.

Governor Bullock has been here for the past two days in attendance upon the Savannah Valley convention. He has paid particular attention to the building and exhibits, and in speaking with THE CONSTITUTION's correspondent today, said:

"Your building is the finest constructed and best arranged exposition structure I have ever seen."

"But what do you think of the exhibits?"

"They are splendid. Many of them have never before been seen in the south, and taken collectively, I think it as fine a display as you ever see in an exposition—finer than I have ever seen at any in the south."

Governor Bullock will remain here until after cotton manufacturers' day, which is next Monday.

The special features of today at the exposition were two concerts by Cappa's band and the second session of the Savannah Valley convention.

The chief item of interest in today's convention was an address by Congressman Barnes and an essay by Engineer J. Barbot, of Charleston. All the delegates expressed great interest in the convention and will do all they can to carry their project to success. After the convention the delegates were banqueted in royal style by Editor Walsh and then were taken around to see the exhibits.

The independent order of Red Men also held their annual convention in the hall today.

The weather was so bad today that all outdoor sports had to be postponed. The crowd was, however, as usual, quite large; in fact, the building is well filled at all times.

It is believed by the officers of the exposition company that President-elect Harrison will come to the exposition. Colonel Pardee was sent on to Indianapolis yesterday with a letter to General Harrison asking when a committee of the citizens of Augusta can have an audience with him for the purpose of extending to him an invitation to visit the exposition. Colonel Pardee will reply by wire, and it is highly probable that the committee will leave for Indianapolis on Sunday. The committee will probably consist of President Tobin, Hon. Pat Walsh, Mr. J. Rice Smith and Dr. Lansing Burrows.

Among the Exhibitors.

THE CONSTITUTION man made a tour among the exhibits this afternoon. They are the handsomest and probably the most numerous, to quote Manager Ryckman, ever seen in the south. Many of them are magnificent and all are pretty. Among some of the number noticed this afternoon were the following. Others will be discribed later on:

The Georgia Chemical Works—A Magnificent Display.

There is nothing in the exposition building that in point of beauty equals the immense exhibit of the Georgia chemical works.

Beauty is, however, not all to be found at this exhibit. It is as interesting and instructive as beautiful. There is enough in this exhibit to occupy the attention of a practical man half a day.

In the center of the exhibit is a model of the factory arranged on a scale of one inch to sixteen feet. The model is so perfect that to see it is almost equal to a visit to the factory, which is located on South Broadway street here in Augusta, Ga. The magintude, however, can never be known until the immense buildings covering over seven acres of ground, are seen. Their lot of land covers over twenty acres of ground, through which runs miles of track and switches, connecting with the eight railroads entering the city, giving them unsurpassed shipping facilities. The factory turns out forty thousand tons of all kinds of fertilizers annually, which is the largest production of any single factory in this country. They make all standard brands, and use only the very best material. Their acid phosphate and amoniated goods are in perfect condition, and the reports of the agricultural department show that they have never been surpassed.

But to return to their exposition display. Mr. Lowe, the superintendent and chemist of the works, has arranged a pyramid in the display that is a most complete object lesson. From the base half way up there is brimstone, then comes the phosphate rock and on the four corners are round bottles containing nitrate of soda. The brimstone and nitrate of soda are used in making the sulphuric acid, which dissolves the phosphate rock after it is ground, thus producing the acid phosphate which is in a large glass jar, forming the apex of the pyramid.

There is another pyramid on the opposite side showing samples, attractively arranged, of every ingredient and chemical used in the manufacture of all brands of fertilizers. This display which fully represents the solidity and splendid work of the company is alone worth the expenses of a trip here.

Mr. J. Rice Smith, the manager of the chemical works, is also a director and vice president of the exposition company, and has cheerfully given his aid to President Tobin, Secretary Alexander and the other officers to make the exposition what it is—a great and grand success. Mr. Smith is assisted by an able corps of officers. They are Professor C. B. F. Lowe, superintendent and chemist; Mr. A. Smith Irvine, treasurer, and General M. A. Stovall, assistant manager, all of whom can give prompt, faithful and efficient service in their work and departments.

Electric Lighting.

The Augusta Exposition building and grounds are probably the best lighted of any show of the kind ever held in the south. Every nook and corner is as bright at night as in the day, and the credit of it all is due to the splendid work of the Thompson-Houston Electric Light company. Jack Waterman, their able and popular manager here, has made things as they are. With the characteristic enterprise of himself and his company, he has put three arc dynamos of fifty light capacity and one incandescent dynamo of 400 light capacity in the building. Besides these he has electric motors running the silk looms and pine straw bagging looms. The exhibit of the company's lights around their dynamos is magnificent. Fist the the sign of the Thompson-Houston electric company in incandescent lights meets the gaze of an observer and around on every hand are colored arc lights making a most magnificent display. This company lights Augusta and nearly all other southern as well as northern cities. Its works here are run principally by water power from the canal, but to provide against such accidents as were caused by the flood, they also have an enormous engine at their main station. These lights were proven to be superior to those of other companies here and they have driven all others out of business.

A Great Mill Supply Exhibit.

The most interesting mechanical exhibit at the exposition is made by Mr. David B. Douglass, of 201 Church street, Philadelphia. Mr. Douglass himself is here, representing his great mill supply house. Among the ingenious supplies he has here are Guild & Lord's cotton reels and twist counters, yarn beams, diamond point drivers, Key's English oil cans, rings for cotton spinning, Windsor scales, anti-rust compound and electro polish. A rapid measurer of cloth in the roll attracts a crowd of manufacturers and they declare it exactly what retail dealers need. An ingeneous machine is a lace hole protector. Another ingenuous contrivance which catches everyone is a pure silk wiping towel. Mr. Douglass also shows the largest ring-traveler ever made, and he is agent for Fisher, White & Co., of Providence, the celebrated makers of these useful articles. Mr. Fisher has everything used in any kind of a mill and his is indeed a great show.

Church & Co.—Soda.

The great New York soda firm of Church & Co., is making a solid and strictly business exhibit of their goods. They occupy a large floor space and have their exhibit arranged in the center of the building in such a manner that it is sure to attract the attention of visitors. Then Mr. Ed. Muse and quite a number of assistants are making the ladies happy by distributing free samples of the soda to everyone in order, as Mr. Muse says, that the people themselves may decide which is the best soda on the market. Mr. Muse informed me yesterday that he had taken an actual count of all the ladies who stopped at his exhibit and he finds that seven out of ten of them use the Arm and Hammer brand of soda. The exhibit is in the center of the building and attracts all the visitors.

The King Cotton Factory.

The exhibit of the King Cotton Manufacturing company, of this city, is the handsomest arranged and most creditable display of cotton goods in the building. It was arranged by Mr. Smith, the superintendent of the factory, and the goods, although not especially made for exhibition, are the whitest and finest grade of cotton goods made in Georgia, and equal any made in the south.

There has been such a demand for the finer grades of these goods that President Estes has found it necessary to make an addition of 100 feet by 90 feet and four stories high to the building. He has also purchased thirteen of the improved carders from the Ashworth company, of England, who are exhibiting here. The King mill turns out fifteen million yards of the very finest cotton goods annually. The sizes made are ¾, ⅞, 4-4 and 40 inches. Its president, Mr. Charles Estes, is the man who, when mayor of the city, constructed the canal, and to him, probably, more than anyone else, is Augusta indebted for being the manufacturing city she is.

A Handsome Tobacco Display.

The great tobacco display of the exposition is that made by the well-known Winston, N. C., firm of P. H. Hanes & Co. These famous manufacturers of all grades of plug and fancy tobaccos are represented here by Mr. J. S. Bush, who has arranged an exhibit that in point of beauty and attractiveness cannot be surpassed. It is formed of 500 boxes of their popular brands and the framed roof is thatched and covered with the prettiest leaf tobacco ever seen in its natural state in Augusta. The exhibit is a thing of rare beauty, and everyone should see it.

Alexander's Seed Show.

The Alexander Drug and Seed company's display, made up entirely of seed, is conceded to be the handsomest and most tastily arranged exhibit of the kind here. In shape, it is a pagoda, the roof of which is thatched with sheaf oats, crowned at the top with Pampas plumes and flags. The supporting columns are decorated with upland rice, kaffi corn and other cereal and forage plants, the seed of which are sold by this enterprising company. They have on exhibition thirty-five varieties of grass seed, including clovers of all kinds, besides seeds of every other imaginable variety, for the purity of which they enjoy an enviable reputation. The exhibit has been justly called an ideal one.

The London Crystal Lens Company's

exhibit on the main aisle is attracting the attention of those using spectacles and eye-glasses. The most difficult cases of afflicted eyesight are examined free of charge by the celebrated French and German opticians professors. Charles Werner and Oscar Lewald, whose knowledge of optics and their politeness to all visitors is a credit to the exposition.

COLUMBUS IN HER GLORY.

Opening of the Chattahoochee Valley Exposition.

COLUMBUS, Ga., November 15.—[Special.]—Notwithstanding the opening day of the exposition was ushered in under lowering clowds, it has been a red letter day in the history of Columbus. At an early hour the streets were thronged with people to witness the grand civic and military procession, which was formed, and marched to the grounds in the order of the programme as sent yesterday. The crowd in attendance was immense for the first day, especially as the arrangement of the exhibits is not yet complete.

After prayer by Rev. W. A. Carter, President Goetchius addressed the vast audience, speaking in eloquent terms of the quick resuscitation of the south after the devastation of war as the wonder of the age, and pointed to the magnificent exhibits of the exposition as illustrating it. His speech was frequently applauded, and at its close he introduced Hon. Lionel C. Levy, orator of the day, as the silver tongued orator of the south.

Mr. Levy closed with a peroration of poetic beauty, which was greeted with wild enthusiasm, the echo of which had not died out, when the famous cannon Red Jacket belched forth the glad tidings that the exposition had been formally opened.

The exhibits are still coming in, though all the space is taken.

The races which, on account of the large number of fine horses present, are the prominent feature of the exposition, and those today are very exciting, though the track is heavy on account of the rain. In the first race—2:40 class—each horse won the heat in the order named: Lillian, John B. Gordon, Mollie Harrington. Time 2:41.

On account of the rain the fourth and fifth heats were postponed till one o'clock tomorrow.

Second race, scramble, ¾ mile dash, six entries, won by C. H. Pettingill's Mute, with Clay Stockton second; time, 1:18.

Third race, ½ mile dash for 2-year-olds, won by Lamont with Reccho second; time, 1:22.

First race to-morrow will be 2:30 class, trotting, four entries. Sam Wilkes, entered by S. P. Salter; Bob Maxwell, by C. S. Schuesler; Miss Cawley, by Anderson & McIntosh; Commotion, by G. F. Geers.

Second race, 1¼ mile dash, five entries. Valet, by C. H. Pettingill; Long Light, by W. C. Younge; Pink Cottage, by J. Mason & Son; Mahoney, by J. T. Williams; Stuart, by W. R. Brannon. The track is pronounced by sporting men the best south of Lexington, and is consequently attracting the best horses in the country.

G. J. Fuller, of Cleveland, comes in to-night with his stable of horses, headed by Patron, who has a record of 2:14½.

The sale of pools tonight was very large. Tomorrow and Saturday are veterans' days and many old soldiers are on the grounds and many more will arrive on the early trains tomorrow morning. They will form a line at the confederate monument at 10 a. m., and march to the exposition grounds, where they will be welcomed by Rev. R. H. Harris, survivor of the Twenty-ninth Georgia, to which General George P. Harrison, of Alabama, will respond. At night there will be a grand torchlight procession and Senator Colquitt and Congressman W. C. Oates, of Alabama, will address them from the balcony of the Rankin house.

The people are inquiring when Grady is coming, and if the brilliant young Georgian does not put in an appearance during the exposition they will be greatly disappointed. The farmers want him on their day while others want him any day.

TAKEN FROM THE GEORGIA PRESS.

An Old Fishhook.—Hawkinsville News: Mr Wiley Fletcher, of Irwin county, is the proud owner of a fishhook that has been in constant use seventy-five years. It was used in hauling the finny tribe from the Ocmulgee river, near Jacksonville, Telfair county, fifteen years, and has been doing good service on the Alapaha river, in Irwin county, over sixty years.

Unwise and Unjust.—Hawkinsville News: Brady, of Sumter, has placed his guano bill before the house again. It is an unwise, as well as an unjust, measure, and is calculated to do the farmer more harm than good. It deserves an ignominious death, and should be buried beyond resurrection. We hope that the representatives and senators from this portion of Georgia will "sit down hard" on Brady and his "guano bill."

Why Those Jugs?—Covington Enterprise: We noticed a package in the Covington depot last week marked "1,000 jugs." Wonder what business "1,000 jugs" has got loafing around loose in a dry county like Newton?

Not So Anxious About the Chinese.—Albany News: California don't care so much about that Chinese business as we were led to believe.

Weary in Well Doing.—Buena Vista Patriot: Several nights ago a young man who lives not far from Buena Vista, went out to take unto himself a wife against the wishes of his lady love's parents. It was by special arrangement that the aforesaid young man was to be in waiting at the window of his sweetheart's room until she made her appearance when they would hie themselves away to the home of a minister and get married, but the young fellow fell asleep and remained in dreamland at least two hours dreaming sweet dreams. In the meantime the old folks "give in," the young man was aroused from his slumbers and they went into the house and were quietly married.

Why He Relented.—Gwinnett Herald: We were about to decide to commit matrimony last week, until one of our delinquents brought us a load of wood. We are also under obligations to Oliver Juban for three very fine potatoes.

ATLANTA'S BOYS

CARRY OFF THE HONORS AT THE AUGUSTA EXPOSITION.

The Governor's Horse Guard Wins a Prize—Notes of the Drill—Three Days of Soldiering.

AUGUSTA, Ga., November 15.—[Special.]—The Governor's Horse Guard of Atlanta was escorted to the depot last night by the local military organizations, carrying with them the prizes of the day and the admiration and good will of the people of Augusta.

The Gate City Guard, consisting of thirty men, under command of Lieutenant Howard Ellis, and the Governor's Horse Guard, composed of thirty-four men in charge of Captain John Milledge, reached Augusta Monday morning to participate in the three days' military encampment and festivities in connection with the opening of the national exposition. Each company was met on its arrival by detachments of the Augusta military organizations and was escorted by them to the Planters hotel.

The assembly was sounded at ten o'clock, and the procession former on Broad street, near the upper market. Eighteen companies of infantry and seven cavalry formed the line at the head of which Generals Gordon, Hampton Stovall and Moore, accompanied by their staff officers, rode. The parade proved a strong drawing card for the exposition and at the grounds the crowd waited impatiently for the appearance of the soldiers. The buildings, grounds, race track and grand stand were crowded with visitors who had come to witness the sham battle and review. At 12 o'clock the staff took their positions just in front of the grand stand and the order was given to pass in review. Around the track the soldiers came with bayonets glistening, swords flashing and the cavalrymen's horses dancing with impatience. As each company passed the staff swords were presented and the salute acknowledged. When the Gate City Guard, with white coats and shakos, passed the staff at a carry, the superb carriage of the men and the military appearance of the company, elicited instant recognition and the spectators in the grand stand made the air tremble with applause, which was renewed when the Governor's Horse Guard, with drawn sabers and mounted on magnificent horses, passed the line with the utmost precision and regularity. But the event of the day was the sham battle. From everywhere visitors had come to see powder burned in imitation of the days of '61. The lines were formed at 4 o'clock, and the salute of the large battery of government artillery was the signal for the fray. Charge and counter charge, advance and retreat, fire and fall back. The big guns of the artillery belched forth flame every minute, and their thunderous tones mingled with the sharper reports of the infantry muskets to form a most realistic imitation of the sounds of battle. The cavalry horses caught the spirit of the day and with arched necks and spreading nostrils, thundered across the field. Captain Milledge, mounted on a superb bay, was everywhere and was always seen leading his men where the smoke was the thickest. The sham battle was a grand success and old soldiers who were present, say that the action was so realistic as to be uncomfortable.

On Tuesday occurred the prize drill for cavalry companies, and the Governor's Horse Guard, who had not intended entering the contest, were persuaded to enter their company. Judges and spectators united in declaring the maneuvering of Captain Milledge's company the best ever witnessed in Augusta. They were awarded the second prize, the first going to their host, the Richmond Huzzars. In the tournament which occurred yesterday the Horse Guard entered four men, and two of the number, Beattie and Bentine, secured prizes. Of the infantry, George Fry, Jr., of the Gate City Guards, was awarded the special prize offered to the most military man—appearance, drilling, and condition considered. This is a fine showing for Atlanta, and the gate city should be proud of her soldier boys who have so well sustained her reputation. All the Atlanta boys made their headquarters at the Planter's hotel, where they were well cared for by genial Bill Camp, who, by the way, hasn't forgotten his Atlanta affiliations, and who imported an Atlanta cook for the occasion. Colonel Camp, as they call him, took quite an interest in Atlanta's military, and now serves to his delighted guests hash a la Fitzgerald. The boys were loud in their praises of Colonel Camp and his hotel, and will not need the recently-added and novel attraction of "The Planter's Daughter" to make them stop with him whenever a fortunate fate leads them his way.

Captain John Milledge was perhaps the most observed and most frequently complimented officer visiting Augusta during the encampment. His military bearing, thorough familiarty with cavalry tactics and expert horsemanship, made him noticeable as a soldier, as his clever manner and genial ways make him popular as a gentleman. The captain won for his company the good will of all he was thrown in contact with, and it is but natural that the Horse Guard should be proficient and popular, with Captain Milledge for their commander.

The horses ridden by the Guard were owned by their riders and were shipped from Atlanta for the drill. A finer set of horses were never seen in Augusta, and stock men at the exposition were extravagant in praise of their fine points. The horses ridden by Captain Millage and by Robert Dohme and Albert Howell were the three finest in the city and were constant objects of admiration.

Lieutenant Howard Ellis, of the Gate City Guard, was dubbed by the young ladies the handsomest soldier on the grounds, and if he had carried away with him the many bouquets he received from his susceptible admirers his car would have been converted into a conservatory. His honors were not won without decided opposition, however, as Tom Fitzgerald, of the Horse Guard, is still a sweet memory in the minds of many of the fairest of our fair.

Atlanta's soldiers made a fine impression in Augusta and a most cordial welcome awaits them whenever they return to taste the waters of the Savannah, for the Indian legend says that no one having once tasted the waters of our river, can ever die without returning to taste again the water that flows from the mountain to the sea.

Bruton.—This place has three steam saw mills, and one grist mill, cotton gin and planer combined, all of which do an extensive business; and one turpentine still which manufactures about two hundred dollars worth of rosin and spirits daily. Added to these are seven business houses, all of which seem to be doing a good trade; and still other new store houses are going up, and one machine shop, with a buggy and carriage factory connected therewith, run by that noted machinist, J. O. Wilson.

Vienna.—An old negro woman who has been living for quite a number of years on the plantation of Mr. R. T. Smith, down on Gum creek, fell down from the barn loft on Saturday last and was killed. The woman was old and somewhat subject to fits. It is supposed that she must have had a fit, the cause of her fall.

Cardele.—What is soon destined to be the first bank building in Dooly is being erected under the supervision of Colonel J. E. D. Shipp, of Americus. The building is to be of brick, 46x75 feet, with bank office and store in basement, with hall for printing office and other small offices on the second floor. Negotiations are now receiving satisfactory considerations for the establishment of a newspaper at that place in the next forty or sixty days.

Hinesville.—Burglars entered the residence of Dr. J. R. Middleton, near Johnston station, one night last week, and carried off several articles of value. The doctor himself narrowly escaped with his life, receiving a pistol shot wound in his foot from the retreating robber.

Cartersville.—The election of Hon. T. N. Milner to the bench of the Cherokee circuit gives general satisfaction here. Mr. Milner is a man of many friends, and is entitled to them by his many good qualities of head and heart. A good record is expected of him.

A large and enthusiastic assembly of the citizens of Cartersville and vicinity, celebrated tonight the brilliant victories of Hons. T. W. Millner and A. W. Fite in their race for the judgeship and solicitorship of the Cherokee circuit. Bonfires, music and fireworks attested the joy and gratification of the people. AT THE COURT HOUSE.

In superior court yesterday, Judge Marshall Clarke presiding, the day was taken up with the case of Beck & Gregg vs. the Atlanta Construction company and Mr. J. C. Kimball.

It seems that when the construction company failed it was developed that the advertised capital stock paid in, amounting to $10,000, had never been paid in. Mr. J. C. Kimball was appointed assignee, but subsequently a writ for receiver was issued and Mr. Hugh Culberson was appointed receiver.

The case now before court is really a question as to whether the personal property of Messrs. Burns & Parkins, the members comprising the construction company, can be made responsible for the liabilities of the firm. Hall & Hammond, N. J. and T. A. Hammond, Will Haight and C. J. Simmons represent the prosecution and Colonel Broyles the defense.

MR. AND MRS. SAUNDERS.

A Jacksonville Detective Tells of Their Marriage and the Cases Against Them.

Jimmie Norris, an old Atlanta boy, reached the city yesterday as a Florida officer.

Mr. Norris came after Mr. and Mrs. Saunders.

Atlantians who know the small, nervy fellow will be glad to know that he is now a deputy sheriff in Jacksonville and that he is doing well. In speaking of the trouble in which Mr. and Mrs. Saunders find themselves Deputy Norris says:

"On the 7th of November a modist little notice in the Times-Union of Jacksonville, announced that Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Saunders would leave for the north in a few days. After a short stay the couple left Camp Perry, where they had, by the quarantine laws, been compelled to stop for a length of time, and reached Atlanta Tuesday only to be arrested in accordance with a telegram sent by Chief Hoey of Jacksonville. On account of the lady the prisoner received every attention admissible, under the circumstances, from Chief Connolly, and when I arrived I found the prisoners as comfortable as possible.

"I brought with me a warrant for Saunders, sworn out before Edward Williams, justice of the peace, charging him with the larceny of $93 worth of goods from Mrs. Elizabeth Marion. This warrant is dated November 13. The warrant for Mrs. Saunders is dated November 10, and charges her with the larceny of $122 worth of jewelry, and is sworn out before M. M. Bellissario, justice of the peace, upon the affidavit of one —— McDonald. Upon the warrants brought with me as well as telegraphic instructions, the prisoners are held, awaiting the arrival of the requisitions from the state of Florida, which, according to telegraphic communication, are to reach here last night.

"The whole matter is a tangled tarn of mystery, and it will take even a smarter man than the traditional Philadelphia lawyer to figure it out, and here's some of it.

"When the yellow fever broke out in Jacksonville, an hotel called the Mayflower house, was burned by the city authorities. Mr. and Mrs. Saunders were employed in the house. They made claims which were paid. Then came the worst of the fever, then sickness, recovery, marriage. When they reached this city they had two or three trunks, so it is said.

They have secured the services of the Hon. Frank W. Pope, late of Jacksonville, who will closely attend their interests, and if anybody can do them any good it is Frank Pope. Mr. Pope was at one time an aspirant for gubernatorial honors in Florida, and only lately tried the huslings for the mayorality of Jacksonville. He is one of Florida's ablest lawyers and brightest legal lights, and no doubt will be of untold benefit to the defendants in this rather sensational case.

ODESSA, Novvember 15.—The indirect overtures of King Milan, of Servia, for Russian support, have been summarily rejected. The South Russian Express freely describes him as a renegade sclav and an Austrian puppet. The Press censor has not interferred with the newspapers for attacks on King Milan.

Buried Yesterday.

Mr. T. M. Bishop, who has been sick for the past two months with typhoid fever, died Wednesday, and was buried at Decatur yesterday. Mr. Bishop was formerly from Richmond, Va. He has been in the employment of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company for several years. He was sent to Atlanta about four years ago. Soon after he came here he was put in charge of the night service. He was then sent to Athens, Ga., as manager of the exchange there. About two years ago he was married to Miss Mamie Collier, of Atlanta. He was taken sick in Athens and when he recovered sufficiently he came to Atlanta with his family until able to resume his work. The trip here was too much for him, and he began to grow worse from time to time. Dr. Collier aided by Drs. Divine, Dancan and Gaston did all in their power to restore him, but their services were of no avail. His funeral was preached at St. Paul's church at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, after which his remains were carried to Decatur, and interred in the family burial ground of Dr. Collier. Mr. Bishop leaves a young wife and a sweet little child, with many friends to mourn his death. His father, from Riemond, has been by his sick bed for the past two weeks. He had a brother to visit him, but owing to urgent business was called home several days before he died. Mr. Bishop was about twenty-five years old, and an intelligent young man, who made friends wherever he went. Rev. Mr. Cleveland, who performed the pleasing marriage ceremony only about two years ago, performed the sad duty of preaching his funeral yesterday.

A REPUBLICAN MINORITY AGAINST PUTTING OUT A TICKET.

Talk of Democratic Nominations and a City Committee—Mr. Harris Has a Complaint—Another Card.

There was more talk of a regular democratic ticket yesterday. It come from supporters of Mr. Glenn and Mr. Brown alike.

"There must be no delay," said a prominent democrat yesterday. "We ought not wait for the republicans to nominate a ticket, for they will put that off until the last minute with a view to preventing our putting out a ticket. I see Mr. Brewn is against such a step. I am sorry of that, but I feel sure when he sees the necessity for it he will change his mind. He is too good a democrat to allow himself to be put in the position of aiding the republicans in the election of their ticket."

A gentleman who overheard this suggested that in the light of the speeches of Councilman Beutell, who is announced as the republican representative on the ticket, there might be some doubt on that score.

There was a great deal of talk and the bulk of it seemed to be in favor of democratic primaries and a city executive committee.

The Committee of Forty-Two.

There was a called meeting of about sixteen of the republican committee of forty-two last night at Columbus Wimbish's place, on Decatur street.

All of the wards were represented.

Among the prominent colored men present were Smith Easley, Charley McHenry, Henry McHenry, H. S. Day, Thomas Cox and others.

The meeting was brief and perfectly harmonious.

The only important action was the unanimous adoption of a resolution against the putting out of a straight republican ticket for mayor and council at the ensuing city election.

This action will be reported to the committee of forty-two at the meeting to be held on next Tuesday night.

As nearly one-half of the committee of forty-two are strongly opposed to running a city ticket, the outlook is that it will be impossible for the committee of forty-two to agree upon placing a straight ticket in the field next Tuesday night.

A Card From Smith Easley.

ATLANTA, Ga., November 15, 1888.- Editors Constitution: In today's issue of your journal, in reporting a speech made by H. R. Harris, Jr., appears this statement: "Tom's round here now, taking Smith Easley off to one side, and talks so sweet you would not know him." Just why Mr. Harris should make this statement, I am at a loss to know. I wish to say, once for all, I am not interested in the campaign of either of the candidates now before the people. I am a republican, and shall support one. I think that Mr. Harris should learn that successful campaigns are not won by misrepresentations and abuse of gentlemen. His reference to Colonel Buck was very unfortunate to his side. Before this campaign is over I shall be heard from. Respectfully, SMITH W. EASLEY, JR.

Mr. Harris Complains.

EDS. CONSTITUTION—From some cause or other it appears almost impossible to secure through the press accurate reports of speeches made in the present city canvass. Many of the speeches have been distorted to such an extent as to be entirely unrecognizable by the speakers or by those who heard them.

This is especially true in reference to the fourth ward meeting last Tuesday night, and the Second ward meeting last night. My speech as reported in this morning's paper was badly butchered. The speech as reported does me great injustice. In speaking of Mr. Anderson I said "much has been said about Jim Anderson and I have this to remark, I never came in contact with him as an official but once. I had the misfortune to have my little boy struck on the head by a grown woman. She was arrested. On the day of the trial I appeared in court and introduced myself as Mr. Harris, and said I am at work by the month in the revenue service and would ask that you call my case as early as possible, and let me return to my business. I took my seat and waited and waited. Finally Judge Anderson said, "Were is that revenue man?" I arose with fear and trembling and said my name is Harris. I felt agrieved, and on that night at the court house, when I had been called for, Mr. Anderson said who is that man Harris? Mr. Hoke Smith, who was sitting by me, said "This is Mr. Harris." I said then to Mr. Anderson I am the man whom you insulted in court by alluding to me as "that revenue man," and Mr. Anderson then said he meant no offense."

Later on in the speech I said I hated tyranny in every shape, and I alluded to Ireland as my justification, and then I said when tyranny shall have been buried I expect to teach my children to sit on its grave and sing and curse it." Before the city city campaign was opened Mr. Walter Brown, the candidate for mayor, offered to engage a stenographer at his own expense to report all speeches made at the "people's meetings" to the city papers for publication. This proposition is still open, and as many of the speeches are so badly and incorrectly reported I trust the newspapers will accept Mr. Brown's proposition, so that the public can have the speeches as delivered. The reports of Mr. Brown's fourth ward speech and my talk at second ward meeting contained so many inaccuracies and mtsstatements that I trust the papers will no longer hesitate to accept Mr. Walter Brown's proposition. Let your readers have full, fair and impartial reports of all the speeches. Justice to all concerned demands this. HENRY R. HARRIS, JR.

A Startling Proposition.

Undoubtedly, it is a part of the programme of the new administration to admit three or four states in the northwest, thus securing six or eight additional republican senators, and twelve or fifteen new electoral votes.

The Boston Globe has a scheme for heading off the republicans. It advises the democrats, before they go out of power, to cut up Texas into three or four states. According to the Globe, Texas is about as large as the thirteen original states combined, leaving out North Carolina, and its population equals that of New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Delaware, Florida, Colorado, Nevada and Oregon. These states have sixteen senators, while Texas has but two. Now, says our New England contemporary, if the republicans are going into the business of manufacturing states, why should not the democrats do the same?

It cannot be denied that Texas is inconveniently large for a state, and the fact that her productive soil is easily capable of supporting thirty millions of people makes it tolerably certain that she is destined to be the most populous state in the union.

But there is apparently an insurmountable obstacle in the way. It is this—the people of Texas are not willing to see their state divided. From the gulf to the western frontier, and from the Rio Grande to the end of the panhandle, the Texans are of one mind. They are proud of their magnificent empire, and they are determined that it shall remain a single democratic commonwealth, with one government and one destiny.

It is useless to talk to them about the benefits that would accrue to the democratic party under the new state plan. So long as they are able to control their home affairs they are not going to cut their domain to pieces to insure the success of the national democracy.

So it is useless to think of the proposed Texas scheme.

SINCE the republican victory Editor Halstead cannot find as many southern traitors as he did before.

A New Criminal Type.

At Wenona, Illinois, the other day, a man named Burkhart slipped into the house of the millionaire banker, Mr. Howe, and murdered the old man and his wife in their sleep.

After the crime had been committed Burkhart went home and told his wife about it. Mrs. Burkhart was dumbfounded. She knew that Howe was a kind-hearted philanthropist, without an enemy in the world, and that her husband had never had any dealings with him, and had no grudge against him. The poor woman asked the murderer why he had killed the old couple. He replied gloomily that he did not know, and that he regretted it. He went to the door, but soon returned and said that men were watching the house, a sure sign that he was suspected.

Again Mrs. Burkhart questioned him concerning his motive for the deed, but he said that he had none. In perfect health, with a sound mind, without having had even a single drink of liquor, he had entered Howe's residence and killed the sleeping pair. He was not a robber, and his object was not to demand money. He had nothing to revenge, because Howe had never injured him. Why, then, did he commit the murder?

His answer to the question was always the same, "I don't know." After talking the matter over with his wife, he said that there was no possible chance of escape. He reproached her for allowing him to go out the night before. He told her that if she had made the slightest objection he would have remained at home, and his hands would have remained unstained with human blood.

Burkhart then stepped into another room and killed himself by cutting his throat with a razor.

A crime so horrible and utterly lacking in motive has naturally excited as much alarm as indignation. Matters have come to a bad pass when a sober man of sound mind calmly walks into a house and murders strangers in their bed, without being able to give the shadow of a reason for his action.

This case certainly deserves to be ranked among the curiosities of crime.

THEY have an Ananias club in Boston composed chiefly of republicans.

About the Electoral College.

Several correspondents have written to inquire as to the presidential electors and the electoral college.

For the information of these, we may say that while the people have voted for president, the president to succeed Mr. Cleveland is not yet legally elected. This election will occur when the electors chosen by the voters of each state shall assemble in the capitol of the state to formally ballot for president and vice-president of the United States.

The electors are not bound by their election to vote for any particular candidate, but the vote of the people is usually understood to be a command. The chosen electors, however, have the right to vote for whomsoever they please for president and vice-president. The only constitutional limit to their discretion being that the president and vice-president shall not be citizens of the same state. This provision was inserted so as to prevent the larger and more powerful states from usurping authority, or from obtaining undue influence in the government.

There is no organized body of electors so far as the nation is concerned. The president and vice-president are elected by the people of the states and not by the people as a whole; therefore only the state electors organize. The term "electoral college" is merely a popular designation, which has no legal meaning.

The electors of the different states meet, as we have said, in their respective state capitals, and vote for the choice of their party. They then sign three certificates of all the votes given by them. One certificate is forwarded by special messenger to the president of the United States senate, another is sent by mail, and the third is delivered to the judge of the district in which the electors have assembled. The certificate sent to the president of the senate must reach him before the first Wednesday in the following January.

On the second Wednesday of the following February, congress canvasses the electoral returns and official declaration is made of the result.

A Sentimental Anarchist.

A special writer for the Boston Post, whose pen name is "Taverner," says that he has read with pain a communication in the papers from Mr. W. D. Howells, the novelist, in which that voluminous author, while refusing to make a speech on the anniversary of the hanging of the Chicago anarchist, alludes to the event as a "tragedy" and to the murderers as "victims."

Mr. Howells has expressed himself in print on this subject before, and he then seemed to be in full sympathy with the anarchists and their purposes. That he has not revised or modified his views, his allusions quoted above will show—and it is the most natural thing in the world that he should hold them and that he should not change them.

The Boston writer, somewhat surprised at Mr. Howells's attitude, proceeds to account for it, and his theory is more truly Bostonian than anything we have seen in a long time. In Taverner's "humble opinion"—as if any of the Bostonese ever had an humble opinion—"the trouble with Mr. Howells is that he is deficient, to use Mr. Arnold's well-worn but significant phrase, 'in knowledge of the best that has ever been said or done,' and consequently lacks that breadth of view and sameness of judgment which such knowledge alone can impart."

This is ridiculous on the face of it. Mr. Howells no doubt knows as much about "the best that has ever been said or done" as Mr. Arnold ever did. The real trouble with the Boston novelist is that in worshiping Russian realism as it is developed in Tolstoi's novels, he has saturated himself with the Russian doctrine of no government. How this doctrine and its results may fit the needs of the Russians, we do not know, but it is a vile doctrine when imported to America either in Russian books or in the hearts of the bloody-minded wretches who do not know one government from another, and who know nothing about freedom.

Here government is by the people, of the people and for the people. No Russian could by any possibility understand this. The czar's people are dealing with entirely different conditions and contingencies. Having too much government they want to fly to the other extreme and have no government. When they come to this country they bring their desires with them. They come hating every shape and form.

Mr. Howells is a sentimentalist, pure and simple. He is a sentimental anarchist, and therefore, a harmlsss one. He will never throw a bomb.

Undoubtedly manufacturing builds up cities and new towns, thus creating home markets for our farmers. A LITERARY CONTEMPORARY remarks that, although it is rather late in the day to state, the fact the First Napoleon was a voracious reader of novels. Never in the history of the world was there so practical a man gifted with such an imagination.

IT IS WELL KNOWN that the late Samuel J. Tilden was not a prohibitionist, but many people will be surprised at the large amount of liquor remaining in the old gentleman's cellar at his death. The New York Sun says: "This afternoon 444 bottles of Steinberger Cabinet Imperial (1868) are being held up for purchasers at the Fifth avenue auction rooms. They came from the cellars of the late Samuel J. Tilden, at Greystone, and with them came out more liquid stores, the quantity and quality of which speak eloquently in commendation of Mr. Tilden's good taste and his respect for refreshments with an age to them. Kentucky redeye, genuine, thirty years old, kept in the wood, forms a portion of the stock. There are one hundred gallons of it. Then there is claret, Chateau Latour (1874) and Chateau Lafitte (1864), and there are champagnes and gin and white wine and apollinaris water and seltzer—in all, 748 cases, bottles, jugs, demijohns and other receptacles, well filled. That Steinberger is said to be worth $10 a bottle. The other liquids are valuable in proportion. The sale will lack neither in interest nor purchasers.

THE NEW YORK GRAPHIC tells the following sad little story: "Is there not a fatality attached to some families? Everyone knows the sad story of the wedded life and divorce of Kate Chase and ex-Senator William Sprague, of Rhode Island. When that brilliant woman had legally severed the bonds that bound her to her husband her son Willie remained with his father and the girls went with their mother. The country had well nigh forgotten the troubles of the family when the ex-senator went down to Staunton, Va., and married a young lady named Miss Mabel Weed. She was a recognized beauty and the belle of her neighborhood. The following summer the bride went to Newport and took with her a younger sister, who was a bewilderingly pretty blonde. Willie Sprague saw her, and though he was then a callow and rather uncouth lad of nineteen, he fell in love with her at first sight and before the autumn days were over he married her. A few days ago this wife of Willie Sprague was wedded at Canonchet to Garret A. Wheaton, of Cleveland, O. But Willie is yet alive, and the world learns now that over a year ago he was divorced from the pretty girl whom he had made his wife in the early days of his young manhood. The members of the legislature are especially invited to attend and a large number of them will be on hand.

Dr. Haygood has given twenty years of his life to the education of the youth of Georgia and he has given the subject profound thought. It is understood that he thinks the present school system is good as far as it goes, but ought, by all means, to be extended to six months in the year.

THE BIGGEST CHECK.

THAT EVEN WALL STREET HAS EVER SEEN.

President Inman Signs a Check for $3,950,000—The Policy of the Terminal Company.

NEW YORK, November 15.—[Special.]—The biggest check that even Wall street has seen for a long time, was today drawn to the order of the Central Trust company of New York, and signed by President John H. Inman, of the Richmond Terminal company. The check was for $3,950,000, which, with $250,000 previously paid, makes the entire $4,200,000 that the Terminal company bargained a few weeks ago to pay for the Georgia company.

Under the terms of the purchase this payment was not required for over sixty days yet, but President Inman says that the money to make the payment was in hand, and that, therefore, he and his directors saw no advantage in exercising the option of additional time, but preferred to plank the money down and thereby close up the matter. As soon as the big check was deposited with the trust company, that institution issued its check to the various parties who had owned the Georgia company stock, and thus was closed one of the largest transactions which has ever been negotiated in southern railroad affairs, and John L. Cadwallader, the distinguished lawyer who represented the Belmont contingent in the deal, says it has been the cleanest and best managed negotiation of like magnitude he ever saw.

All the officers of the Georgia company resigned today in order that the Terminal company might appoint an administration to suit itself. Only three of those who resigned were re-elected, namely, Messrs. Inman, Kissell and Swann. The other members of the new board are George S. Scott, Samuel Thomas, Calvin S. Brice, W. S. Chisholm, John H. Hall, John C. Calhoun, Pat Calhoun and John G. Moore, and at a subsequent meeting of this new board of directors, John H. Hall was elected president of the company. In this directory the south certainly has strong friends, and they are men of great power. Their investments in the south foot up millions of dollars, and therefore it must follow that their interest and best energies will be devoted to the industrial progress, and further material development of that section. Any other policy would necessarily be suicidal, and they are not men to work injury to themselves.

Pat Calhoun says: "The purchase of any other railroad is not now contemplated, but there are other plans being formulated that will work incalculable good to all sections through which the Terminal company's systems run, and demonstrate to the whole south the wisdom and substantial friendship of the men who are now in control of southern railroad affairs." SHOCKING STORY OF ALASKA.

A New York Lady Tells of the Awful Condition of the Indian Women.

NEW YORK, November 12.—The story told by Mrs. Voorhis, of this city, who has recently returned from Alaska, regarding the treatment of the native women by the whites, is a shocking one. "If people realized," said Mrs. Voorhis, "that in the wilds of its Alaskan territory this civilized, refined, advanced nineteenth century United States holds a perfect inferno of crime and torture, where helpless women and mere children are being sacrificed and gradually exterminated, surely some remedy might be found." According to Mrs. Voorhis, there is no restraint upon the lowest passions of the rough miners, trappers, soldiers and sailors. The Indian woman is considered lawful spoil. The men steal these unfortunates if they can; if not, they buy them from their parents for a knife, a jug of rum, or a string of beads. If these considerations do not weigh, they make the old people drunk and carry off the girl. A miner will come and barter for a child of fourteen, and carry her off shrieking with terror. She becomes the slave of the whole camp, and is finally sent back to her people to die. The love of liquor seems to be universal among the Indians, and to obtain it they will barter off their children and everything they possess. A whole tribe is known to have perished in one winter because they sold all their furs and skins for liquor, and being without protection during the severe weather, they froze to death. It is against the law to sell them liquor, but the law is a dead letter.

"Yes," said the first pretty girl spitefully, "that's just what's the matter. We were out in the conservatory together, and nobody else was around. He had been just as pleasant and entertaining as man could be, and really I couldn't help thinking what a handsome fellow he was. It was real cozy and dark out there—and we were all alone, as I said before—and he was sitting just as close—and—and—"

"And he kissed you?" the other interrupted eagerly.

"No," was the reply, "the mean, horrid thing! He didn't."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: The Journal has another double-leaded editorial to prove that there is "nothing in" the suggestion of Mr. Grady's candidacy for the senate. The Macon Telegraph says there is nothing in it except a little noise in the hotel lobby at Atlanta.

Any man who spends a day at the legislature cannot fail to see that Mr. Grady is the overwhelming choice of the members for senator. It is known that dozens of men who are pledged to Senator Colquitt, or instructed for him, openly proclaim that they prefer Mr. Grady, and believe that he should be elected; but they are restrained by pledges or instructions. Senator Colquitt's friends admit this in intrenching him behind the tariff breastworks and behind the instructions of county meetings held when Senator Colquitt had no opposition. As Mr. Grady's friend, I urge any man who doubts this to spend an hour or two in questioning the legislators. They will then appreciate the motive that leads the Journal and its ambitious editor to underrate Mr. Grady's strength.

That the Telegraph may understand that this thing has been heard of outside of the hotel lobbies, I request you to print herewith an editorial from the Rome Tribune, written by the brilliant head of the electoral ticket, Mr. John T. Graves:

HENRY W. GRADY, FOR THE SENATE.

In the name of Georgia manhood, young and old, and in the presage of a coming need, the Tribune, of Rome, nominates Henry W. Grady to the senate of the United States.

The time has come when the solid south must have a master voice at Washington. So long as Ben Hill, matchless and immortal, lived in the flesh, there was a lion courage and a tongue of flame to defend the interests and rebuke the slanderers of the south. While John B. Gordon held a seat, there was a grand magnetic man, backed by a noble record, to look the senate in the face, and to catch the national respect with brave words of manliness and truth. It was at once the south's misfortune and reproach that Hill was sent too late, and that Gordon left too soon.

But since the day death silenced Hill and poverty retired Gordon, the south, prolific of brains, energy and devotion in her politicians, has lacked in national counsels the genius of eloquence and the courage of surpassing statesmanship. In the industrial and economic era through which we are passing this need has not been pressing. Judgment, industry, logical presentation of our sectional views and diligent devotion to our material interests has been sufficient for the requirements of the south in congress, and, in the ample illustration of these admirable qualities, our immediate representatives have done memorable and invaluable service to their constituents and the country and the south is due them every meed of grateful recognition and respect.

If economic discussion and material development should continue to monopolize the debates of congress, the south's representation would be past all criticism and worthy of perpetuity. But the clouds are gathering across our political sky. The thunder of the quadrennial ballot is dying away in ominous undertones that threaten and foretell the coming of a storm. There are grave dangers that confront the south, and the section that has come out of great tribulation to the sunshine and glory of industrial greatness, may be driven back by partisan rancor into darkness and gloom to fight against the odds of passion and prejudice, the supreme battle of its social and political life. There are stern times coming for the south in congress, and in the great discussion that will revolve about her, no ordinary voice can be heard above the roar of faction that will flood the house and fill the partisan senate. Judgment and watchfulness are great qualities in public life, but there are emergencies when even these are second to the value of eloquent protest and surpassing plea. The time has come once more when the apprehensive south needs to have added to her equipment of watchfulness and loyalty the crowning glory of a voice that will reach the whole people of the land.

Has Henry W. Grady such a voice? Answer the New England banquet, where the south's incomparable orator in his maiden speech of thirty minutes, mounted to international fame, pedestaling with pleasure every section of the country, and evoking the rare applause of European journals. Answer the Jeff Davis oration of 1886, where amid the historic figures and imperishable names that had place upon the programme, at Atlanta, Grady's speech alone survived the hour and lived in senatorial debate when the honors tendered to the great confederate had been forgotten. Answer Dallas, where the greatest audience that ever listened to a southern speaker, sat spellbound for three hours by the fervid patriotism, the prophetic vision, and the magic eloquence that has had no equal since Sargent Prentiss faded from the sight of men. It is the same story everywhere. Wherever he has spoken he has swept the field. Whether in Georgia or New York, in his home circle or in the metropolis of the country, no matter who else spoke, Grady's speech was always best, most far reaching, and outlived them all. He is today, wanting only opportunity, the unrivalled orator of the south, without a superior in magnetism and effectiveness upon the continent. Let him once speak for the south in the halls of national debate, and thenceforth no man will doubt that the south has found a glorious voice.

But Grady is something more than an orator. The genius that lives in the realm of noble sentiment, is pre-eminently practical, and has sown and gathered a wonderful harvest of substantial profit and glory for the south. No man in it has done more, scarcely one has done so much, for the many sided development for this section. He has always been a leader in every phase of its progress. His boyish genius led the brilliant departure from the beaten path of the old-fashioned journalism of the south, and the best development of our present wonderful newspapers is only the elaboration of the spirit and method which he fashioned fifteen years ago. He was the first to drop the issues of sectionalism and turning his radiant pen like a ploughshare, upon the rich and reeking soil of the south: he first opened up its incalculable wealth to the observation of the world, and blazed the way for the industrial glory that has come to her. And in these recent and eventful days, even as his prophetic view foreshadowed the coming disaster, so his almost inspired foresight, in the general paralysis of surprise and fear, maps out for the south that wise policy of closer union and organization which is the only policy to carry her steadily through the danger and trial that seems to threaten. Everywhere Henry W. Grady has been a conspicuous leader, far in the forefront of progressive thought and policy, and rarely in error in his general conclusions.

He is a many sided man. He is a wonderful committee worker, and capable of sustained and unflagging labor. He is the best political manager in the south, as the memorable campaign that plucked victory from defeat for Governor Gordon will show. He would be a power on the national committee at any time. His executive ability is unsurpassed in Georgia, and has easily ridden over every emergency that evoked it. And all these qualities do not garb him only in relation to Georgia men and measures, but shine with greater vigor in the broader contract with national men, and in Washington would make him as pre-eminent for magnetism and influence as for genius and eloquence.

For twenty years the state has petted and loved this brilliant son, and he has borne so easily and so lovingly the burdens of service laid upon him, that the people may not realize the reach of his patriotism or the depth of his capacity. He is really a wonderful man, whose resources have never been sounded and whose splendid talents and energies will only reach their full development under superb responsibility.

Gentlemen of the legislature, send this man to the senate. The south has grave need for him, and he will go where he is needed. Georgia will never have cause to blush for Senator Grady. Believe us, if the apprehensions of this uncertain hour should crystalize into baneful fact, this man above all others is the man to meet and address the issues that will come. His heart is pure, his courage clear and his patriotism untainted with alloy. As he is Georgia's broadest benefactor, so he is the ardent lover of Georgia and the south. He knows her traditions, her resources, her conditions and her hopes. Where these great interests are concerned he will speak with definite clearness and precision. When they need help he will be potent to persuade. Where they require defense he will be bravely eloquent to protest; and if in the blindness of malice and the might of numbers our rights should be trampled and our people dishonored, in words that breathe and thoughts that burn, there will be spread upon the records of debate his deathless and enduring protest.

Mr. Editor, I could fill several columns with matter of this sort from papers in Georgia. Mr. Grady is called for by the people and press of this and other states. I firmly believe he could carry the legislature in spite of its pledges and instructions for Colquitt if he would only consent to become a candidate. A FRIEND OF HENRY GRADY'S.

THE DURHAM FAILURE.

ONE MILLION DOLLARS IN THE CRASH.

The Blackwells and Other Big Firms Go Through With a Rush—General Southern News.

Durham, N. C.—There was a business crash in Durham yesterday hitherto unequalled in the business history of North Carolina. Six firms made assignments almost simultaneously. The firms assigning are: W. T. Blackwell, president and owner of the bank of Durham, $400,000; E. J. Parrish, $150,000; W. F. Ellis, $23,000; Muse and Shaw, $10,000; Robbins & Stone, $8,000; J. W. Blackwell, $110,000. The aggregate liabilities will approximate $1,000,000. Assets are not known yet. It is both reported and denied that the assets will equal the liabilities. The largest failure is that of W. T. Blackwell whose liabilities are stated at $400,000. This bank was operated on a capital stock of $50,000, which he doubtless supported by his real estate which was officially stated last June to be $373,000. The last semi-annual statement of the bank showed rediscounted papers amounting to $312,000 and loans amounting to $499,000, $212,000 of which was secured by individual notes without indorsements. Parrish's liabilities are $150,000. Assets are not yet stated. Lockhart's liabilities are $120,000, with assets nearly equal. The crash is a surprise throughout the state. The failure of Parrish & Lockhart will cripple the large tobacco interest of Durham, as they were the largest tobacco warehousemen in the place.

Nashville, Tenn.—A colored convict, named Alex Williams, made his second escape from the penitentiary last night by scaling the wall with the aid of a ladder made of two wagon tongues. Williams is a Davidson county negro. He got away about five months ago, and was only recaptured about a week since. He was detected in the act of cutting through the roof of the prison one day last week. Williams seems to be determined to escape whenever caught. Previous to his incarceration in the penitentiary and while in jail after his conviction, he effected an entrance in Dr. Cook's office, on a plea of sickness, and while there jumped out of the window and fled. He was recaptured about a week afterward, and sent to the penitentiary, from whence he escaped. While outside, he was arrested twice and broke away from the officers and escaped. The last break for liberty he made was while he was handcuffed. The officers fired a dozen shots at him while fleeing through the streets. Williams was indicted on Monday for his escape from prison.

The premium list has been issued of the Tennessee Poultry and Pet Stock association, which will hold its next exhibition in Nashville from December 10 to December 15. This is the second annual exhibition, and the premiums are liberal enough to insure even a better exhibition than previously held.

No one was killed, though several are severely injured.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—There was quite a sensation here yesterday over the report that a number of leading democrats intended to contest the election of H. Clay Evans to congress. They claimed that so many glaring frauds had been committed in Hamilton county that if the matter were shown up Creed F. Bates would be seated beyond a doubt. Mr. Bates claims to have taken no part in the movement, but there is every reason to believe that his friends will see to it that he gets justice. Something definite will be known in a few days. It is said that the democrats are already in possession of important evidence bearing on the contest.

HOW DOES CORW REALLY TASTE?

An Eater Testifies—Other Novel Election Bets that Must be Paid.

From the Chicago Tribune.

"How did it really taste?"

The question was put to Professor E. L. Morse, the young Harvard man, who paid an election bet by eating a dish of crow in south Chicago Sunday. It was put seriously to the professor as an educated man capable of describing his experience by a gourmet who is not averse to treating his palate to a new sensation when properly recommended.

"It has a decided gamy flavor," said the professor. "To persons fond of wild meat this will not be a drawback. The flavor, in fact, is not as strong as that of some woodcock or even rail I have eaten. The crow I ate was probably young, as it was tender—nearly as tender as a half-grown grouse. I only speak for one of this age."

"How was it cooked?"

"Mine was baked plain, and served merely with some cress. I disdained to shirk full payment of my wager by a resort to French cooking. Besides, when I found I had it to do, I was really curious to know how the bird tasted. So I did not permit it to be stuffed with spices or disguised by a sauce. I ate crow."

"Now, honor bright, can you recommend it?"

"That depends," reflectively answered the professor. "You see this bird has so long posed as a creature of ill-omen, it is blest with so coarse an appetite itself, and tradition and common opinion have so long maligned it that I couldn't recommend it to one whose palate is much affected by his imagination. But to a man who can sit down to a table oblivious of superstition and ridicule, I should say crow might take its place along with prairie chicken or woodcock on his menu. I can say for myself that I should have thought the bird I ate belonged to one of the edible game species, without any suspicion of crow, had I not known beforehand what it was."

"The crow, then, is not so black as he is painted?" said the inquiring epicure, encouraged.

"By no means. It would not surprise me to see crow take its place some day at Delmonico's or Kinsley's among the fashionable game dishes. Other birds of its flavor are becoming scarce except in the wilder parts of the country. The crow, on the other hand, offers tempting facilities to market men almost at their doors."

"Well," philosophized the gourmet as the conversation drew to a close, "stranger things have happened in gastronomy than the one you predict. The jackdaw of Rheims, in spite of a ban by the priesthood, was once relished by French noblemen. Peacocks and parrots were cooked whole in their plumage in the time of the fastidious Heliogabalus. Nowadays we have French cooking—more wonderful than anything to which history can point. Ah! there's no telling but what the future may yet do justice to the crow. If we could only get it out of politics, it might not take so long."

Late Chrysanthemums.

Beneath the last October sun
My drooping garden lies,
A lovely woman, past her prime,
With haggard eyes.

She bloomed through many a sullen night,
Through mony a summer storm;
The breeze that fanned her tears away
Was fond and warm.

But now beneath the frost she lies,
A lone, neglected spot;
Most like a heart by coldness chilled,
Where love is not.

The butterflies that shared her youth
Share now her dim decay;
The birds that sought her in her joy,
Have flown away.

But here and there amid the wreck,
The drift of leaves appear
The hardy, tall chrysanthemums
To crown the year.

Strong, bright, courageous; as a smile
They cheer the withered place;
Like the last charm pale sorrow leaves
A faded face.

O Frost, that comes to all, that spoils
Our blossoms, one by one,
Mature these autumn flowers beneath
Our autumn sun.

That when the days are growing dim,
And nears the wished-for end,
Some flowers, some smile may still be ours
To give a friend.

And when, ere-long, beneath the snow
We rest, secure from pain,
Like the lone garden, we shall find
Our flowers again.

COLQUITT'S RETREAT.

HIS FRIENDS UNWILLING FOR HIM TO APPEAR IN JOINT SPEECH.

A Lively Tilt in the House Which Shows What Senator Colquitt's Friends Think of His Ability.

Senator Colquitt's friends have adopted the policy that it is best for him not to rest his claims for the senatorship on a speech, notwithstanding the fact that he has the senatorial field to himself.

Mr. Grady has announced positively that he was not a candidate, and he repeats that he is not, but the senator's friends are greatly distressed and are carefully watching the situation.

Yesterday's session of the house was made lively by a tilt over the Bell resolution, which invited both Senator Colquitt and Mr. Grady to speak before the legislature.

Mr. Bell's resolution was prepared and offered without the knowledge of Mr. Grady, and, as Mr. Bell states, was only intended to give the house the benefit of an interesting and profitable discussion against which he thought there could be raised no objection.

Immediately after the reading of the journal in the house yesterday, Mr. Bell, of Forsyth, moved to take from the table his resolution of the day before, inviting Senator Colquitt and Mr. H. W. Grady to address the general assembly to-night—the resolution which created such a stir the day before.

Mr. Berner's Statement.

Mr. Berner, of Monroe, rose to a question of privilege and said: "Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a statement to the house.

"On yesterday evening the gentleman from Forsyth introduced a resolution inviting Senator Colquitt to deliver an address in this hall tonight. I moved to lay the resolution upon the table and stated in substance that I understood the senator was absent from the city. After adjournment I was surprised to learn that he had not left the city as he stated he would do, but had postponed his departure until today. While I was correct as to the fact that he would be absent tonight, the time he was invited to deliver the address, I was not correct in my impression that he had already left the city. I wish to explain to the house the circumstance under which I made the statement. On Tuesday evening the senator stated to myself and many other gentlemen that he had an important engagement in the city of Columbus, made sometime since, which required him to leave the city yesterday at noon. I was not informed of any change in the arrangement and believed that he had gone to fill his engagement, I am now informed that, either through a mistake as to the time, or a change of the arrangements, he postponed his departure until today at noon. I have received satisfactory assurances that the senator himself was honestly mistaken as to the time of his engagement. All this may make no material difference, but I think it just to myself and the house to make this explanation that the house may understand that the statement was made in good faith."

Mr. Howell's Statement.

Mr. Howell, after receiving permissoin from the house to make a statement, said:

"While it is true, Mr. Speaker, that this house and all Georgians generally should naturally manifest great interest in every movement that looks to the good of any particular section, there is another thing that should engage the interest of the people of this state, and that is the election of a United States senator. Senator Colquitt is a candidate for reelection. According to all precedent it has been the custom of a senator when offering for re-election to appear before the general assembly and render an account of his services. This I say has been the custom from time immemorial. What I say, Mr. Speaker, is in the interest of Senator Colquitt himself. Not to let him shirk his duty to the people, it is his duty to be here. It is the right and the duty of the legislature of the state to ask him to be here, and I hope he will be here. It is based on a custom that has been established by various legislatures in this state. The election comes off next Tuesday. I do not know whether he would like to meet this legislature and discuss the issues of the day, or not. I for one would like to hear him, and I suppose we should all like to hear him. If we do not accord him that privilege today it is possible we will not be able to hear him before the election, and I rise to state here what I was precluded from saying yesterday, that as he is in the city now, I see no reason why this resolution should not be passed. Why should we not invite him, and if he finds it is impossible to accept there is no reason why he should not tell us so. In the name of God, has it come to pass that the legislature of Georgia shall subserve its actions to the private interest or engagements of one man?"

The Resolution Taken From the Table.

Mr. Bell's motion was put and carried, and the resolution was taken from the table.

Mr. Glenn began the discussion by strongly opposing the resolution. "There was no necessity," he said, "for a joint discussion. We are all democrats, and though our banner went down in the late contest, democratic principles are not dead. [Applause.] There are no issues to discuss. This is no time for discussion. Senator Colquitt is a democrat and stands for democratic principles."

Mr. Bell, the author of the resolution, said that he saw no harm in inviting distinguished gentlemen to give their views. It was customary and altogether proper.

Mr. Harrell, of Webster, opposed the resolution on the ground of legislative impropriety. It is unheard of for the legislature to invite candidates to make electioneering speeches. If candidates wish to speak, let them hire a hall and a brass band, after the getting up the usual petition among their friends. If we invite one candidate to speak to us, we will have to invite all. That would include all of the judges and solicitors-general.

Mr. Lamar's Position.

The next speaker was Mr. Lamar, of Richmond, who said that while he would not pretend to state positively that there had never been an invitation to public men to speak, his recollection was that many of the speeches that were historic and connected with the greatest events in Georgia's past had been delivered at the request of the legislature here or in Milledgeville, and there could be no objection to asking these two distinguished Georgians on the score of impropriety or want of precedent.

But the gentleman from Whitfield insisted that Senator Colquitt should not be asked to indulge in a schoolboy speaking for prize contest. In saying this and insisting that there should be no invitation and no speech, he either expressed Senator Colquitt's wishes or he did not. If he did it was a remarkable position in which to place the man who was to be sent as the champion of Georgia, that he could wish to avoid a contest here at home with one of her own sons; and if he did not represent Senator Colquitt's desire, it looked like making the house do a discourtesy to refuse to extend the invitation after it had been asked to do so.

But the gentleman from Whitfield said there were no issues to discuss, no differences and that everybody stood on the same platform. Then if that be so and there is no issue nothing is left but a question of persons—who shall be senator? To answer that properly there ought surely to be no objection to allowing both Mr. Grady and Senator Colquitt be heard, that as far as that would go the representatives might be prepared to vote after in-

THE DURHAM FAILURE.

ONE MILLION DOLLARS IN THE CRASH.

The Blackwells and Other Big Firms Go Through With a Rush—General Southern News.

Durham, N. C.—There was a business crash in Durham yesterday hitherto unequalled in the business history of North Carolina. Six firms made assignments almost simultaneously. The firms assigning are: W. T. Blackwell, president and owner of the bank of Durham, $400,000; E. J. Parrish, $190,000; W. F. Ellis, $23,000; Muse and Shaw, $10,000; Robbins & Stone, $8,000; J. W. Blackwell, $110,000. The aggregate liabilities will approximate $1,000,000. Assets are not known yet. It is both reported and denied that the assets will equal the liabilities. The largest failure is that of W. T. Blackwell whose liabilities are stated at $400,000. This bank was operated on a capital stock of $50,000, which he doubtless supported by his real estate which was officially stated last June to be $373,000 The last semi-annual statement of the bank showed rediscounted papers amounting to $332,000 and loans amounting to $499,000, $212,000 of which was secured by individual notes without indorsements. Parrish's liabilities are $150,000. Assets are not yet stated Lockhart's liabilities are $120,000, with assets nearly equal. The crash is a surprise throughout the state. The failure of Parrish & Lockhart will cripple the large tobacco interest of Durham, as they were the largest tobacco warehousemen in the place.

Nashville, Tenn.—A colored convict, named Alex Williams, made his second escape from the penitentiary last night by scaling the wall with the aid of a ladder made of two wagon tongues. Williams is a Davidson county negro. He got away about five months ago, and was only recaptured about a week since. He was detected in the act of cutting through the roof of the prison one day last week. Williams seems to be determined to escape whenever caught. Previous to his incarceration in the penitentiary and while in jail after his conviction, he effected an entrance in Dr. Cook's office, on a plea of sickness, and while there jumped out of the window and fled. He was recaptured about a week afterward and sent to the penitentiary, from whence he escaped. While outside, he was arrested twice and broke away from the officers and escaped. The last break for liberty he made was while he was handcuffed. The officers fired a dozen shots at him while fleeing through the streets. Williams was indicted on Monday for his escape from prison.

In any event the invitation should be extended.

Mr. Herrington, of Emanuel, spoke for the resolution. As he finished, Mr. Howell was recognized by the speaker and said:

Mr. Howell's Remarks.

"Mr. Speaker: I shall not detain this house but a few moments. I want to make a statement that I do not appear in what I say as a champion of Mr. Grady. I am willing that the last part of that resolution of the gentleman from Forsyth should be stricken out entirely so that Mr. Grady might not be considered at all in the resolution. I desire simply to state that I advocate the passage of the resolution as much as for anything else on account of a sense of justice to Senator Colquitt. It is right; it is according to custom."

Mr. Glenn: "I wish to ask the gentleman a question."

"Certainly," said Mr. Howell.

"Is Mr. Grady a candidate for United States senator?"

"Mr. Grady is not a candidate and will not be a candidate that I know of. I almost wish that he might not be, for the carrying out of the dictate of the custom house tribune, will serve to show what federal domination against which my friend from Whitfield inveiged so strongly will do for the state of Georgia. [Applause.] Mr. Grady is not a candidate, but I do not hesitate to say that he is being urged to make the race. He has not consented to do so; I don't know whether he will or not. I do know that some of the most prominent leaders on the floor of this house are pressing him to allow the use of his name. Whether he does or not, I am willing, Mr. Speaker, that the house should strike his name from the resolution. My friend Judge Harrell knows that he sat on the floor of this house and listened to young Ben Hill and Pope Barrow speak in this house, which shows what the custom has been."

"I think if you will refer to the journal,"—interrupted Mr. Harrell.

"I saw Ben Hill faint there near the speaker's stand," continued Mr. Howell.

"I have no idea but that numerous speakers have spoken a great number of times," said Mr. Howell. "But the point I make is shall the general assembly officially invite those gentlemen to appear before it."

"Mr. Speaker," continued Mr. Howell, "it would be very officious for Mr. Grady or Mr. Colquitt to ask for the use of this hall. I wish it distinctly understood that I do not care whether or not Mr. Colquitt or Mr. Grady is invited. The gentleman from Webster knows that he listened to J. C. C. Black and Senator Brown discuss the issues of the day. You know that Ben Hill—I mean the great Ben Hill, not the little one [laughter] was invited by the legislature to discuss the issues of the day pending his race for the senate. But I simply want to show you what the custom has been. I cite you the instance of Pope Barrow and little Ben Hill. Now, Mr. Speaker, this discussion has gone far enough. It is apparent to everybody that the friends of Senator Colquitt don't want him to meet anybody in joint discussion. They only want to see that he gets out of the city and they want him to stay out as long as possible Again I say, I don't know whether Mr. Grady will be a candidate or not, I only know that he is being urged. I am willing to invite Senator Colquitt alone. I want to do it, as far as I am concerned, because I want to put myself in the attitude of conforming to custem, and of being willing to extend to Senator Colquitt the privilege which he ought, if he does not, expect it. If he is not willing to come, then the state of Georgia will know, that if he is elected, you have elected a senator who fears to stand the light of public scrutiny."

The Rankin's Substitute.

Mr. Rankin, of Gordon, offered the following substitute for the resolution:

Resolved, That the use of the hall of the house be and is hereby tendered to Senator A. H. Colquitt, and to Mr. H. W. Grady, or any other prominent citizens of this state who may desire to address the general assembly upon public issues, at such time as they may select, if it does not interfere with the business of the general assembly.

Mr. Bell withdrew his resolution and accepted the substitute, which was adopted.

Senator Colquitt left the city yesterday afternoon for Columbus to attend the Chattahoochee Valley exposition.

THE RACE BEGUN.

The Next Gubernatorial Campaign Already Fairly Under Way.

Several months ago THE CONSTITUTION predicted that Hon. Fleming duBignon and Hon. James G. Blount, of Macon, would be two of those that would make the race for governor two years hence.

This statement, it appears, is being borne out, for it is a generally admitted fact now that both of these gentlemen are in the race. Mr. Blount does not deny it, and is openly at work laying his plans for the campaign. While Mr. duBignon does not say that he is in the race, he does not deny it, and it is apparent that his friends in the legislature are hard at work for him. It is said that many of the members of the general assembly have already gone to him with promise of hearty support in his race against Mr. Blount, and that his list of supporters is being added to every day. Indeed, unless indications count for nothing, Senator duBignon can count on most of the members of the present legislature as being for him should he make the race.

Congressman Blount, who is a keen observer, has his eye on the situation, and it is said he is putting in some very effective work. If he runs for governor, there will be a vacancy in his congressional district, over which there will be a heated contest. Senator Bob Whitfield, of Baldwin, and Senator Charley Bartlett, of Bibb, and Hon. Bob Berner, of Monroe, will most certainly be in the race to succeed Mr. Blount, should he make the fight for governor. At least so their friends say, and none of the three deny it.

It appears that we will have some very interesting contests two years hence.

Death of a Good Old Lady.

STEWART—HINES.

A Wedding in Macon Wednesday Night—Other Society News.

The marriage of Mr. Frank Stewart and Miss Emily N. Hines, which took place Wednesday evening at the residence of the bride's father, Colonel R. K. Hines, in Macon, is described as one of the prettiest weddings yet seen in the central city. The wedding was a quiet one, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. R. Winchester, rector of Christ church, in the presence of the members of the families of the bride and groom and of a few intimate friends. The Atlanta friends who accompanied the groom were Captain and Mrs. R. A. Harris, Miss Emma Stewart, Mr. R. B. Swift and Mr. R. O. Campbell.

After the ceremony the wedding party was given an elegant dinner by Colonel and Mrs. Hines, and after this Mr. and Mrs. Stewart came to Atlanta, where they will make their home.

The Macon Telegraph, in speaking of the wedding, says:

The bride and groom are well known to Macon people. The former as a little lady of such talent, of such sweet nature and excellent traits of character that she was exceedingly popular not only with the young people, but with all who were fortunate enough to come within the range of her acquaintance. The groom has the reputation of being one of the finest young business men Macon has ever known. When a mere lad he was regarded as possessing remarkable business qualifications, and no young man of his years ever attained a higher commercial position in the same length of time than he. No young couple ever left Macon with more sincere wishes for all the happiness and prosperity possible.

The groom is the senior member of the firm of Stewart & Bowden, of this city, and is one of Atlanta's most popular young men. He is a business man of great ability and is justly regarded as one of the most successful young business men of this city. Hosts of Atlanta friends wish "Frank" Stewart and his fair bride all the happiness of life.

The "German evening" to be given this evening at Mrs. Ballard's, will not be in the German tongue, nor, as some have supposed, will it be a "German dance," but the most delightful German music, instrumental and vocal, romantic, poetical and historical tableaux, short and popular readings, all of German authors or subjects. This will be entirely different from the "Irish," the "Greek," the "Venetian," the "American," or anything else the society has yet attempted.

Miss Clementine Kratz, of New Orleans, is in Atlanta, at 58 Forsyth street. She came to the city for the purpose of teaching French, German, music and English, and brings the highest recommendations from well known people north and south. She studied abroad many years, and is a thorough scholar, and personally a very bright and attractive young lady. She has already succeeded in securing a number of pupils among the best people in the city.

A union meeting of all the bands of the Woman's Christian Temperance union was held yesterday afternoon at the First Baptist church. A great many ladies were present and new plans were formed for carrying on the charitable and temperance work in which the society is interested.

The White Rose band belonging to the sixth ward has gained thirty new members, who have signed the triple pledge, which is total abstinence from whisky, profanity and tobacco. The Trinity Home Mission has also one hundred and six new members who have signed the triple pledge. All the unions are in a flourishing condition and are doing good and noble work.

Miss Kathleen Stockwell, of Indiana, arrived Wednesday, and is the guest of Mrs. W. H. Venable, on Forest avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Griswold, of New Orleans, are in the city stopping at the Kimball.

Mrs. Wm. Knowles, of Pensacola, spent yesterday with relatives in the city on her way home from the north.

Several Georgia editors were in the city yesterday on their way to attend the exposition at Augusta. Among them were Ben F. Perry, of the Cherokee Advance; C. J. Cook, of the Leary Courier; P. T. McCutchen, of the Franklin News; L. B. Beard, of the Dawsonville Advertiser; Captain Newman, of Canton, and others.

Wednesday evening in Marietta, at the Presbyterian church, Miss Carrie Nina Whitlock was united in marriage to Mr. E. E. Malcolm, Rev. Dr. Butolph officiating. The wedding was a brilliant affair, numerous friends from all parts of the state being present. After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Whitlock house, and an elegant banquet was spread. At 12 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm left for their future home in Knoxville, Tenn. The young bride is a daughter of Mr. M. G. Whitlock, while the groom is a prominent young railroad man of Knoxville.

WATCHES, DIAMONDS, ETC.

A LITTLE LATE!

There always has to be "the last man." Some one has to be last for every train that ever started. It does seem as though the last man would never come to J. P. STEVENS & BRO.'S Jewelry Establishment.

Customers come and come, from eight o'clock in the morning until six in the afternoon. There must be something reasonable drawing so many customers. Doubtless it is the fact that we import our goods directly from Europe to Atlanta, thereby saving several profits that other dealers have to pay. Then, again, we buy goods that people want. We can furnish the silverware for your table at prices so low you will be surprised; or, if you wish art goods for decorative purposes, we have the most exquisite products of foreign potteries within reach of the most limited means.

When it comes to WATCHES and DIAMONDS, our leading specialties—we simply ask you to look everywhere else first—come to our place last, and we will show you just how much we can save you in the purchase. Don't make the mistake of buying without seeing our stock.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, November 15.—The stock market was less active today and speculation was confined more than usually to a few stocks, and while the advance of the past two days was continued in the forenoon the advantage was lost toward the close, leaving a great majority of the list fractionally tower than last evening. The news of the day was generally of an encouraging character, although there was nothing definite in regard to the progress made in fixing up several railroad disputes now in process of adjustment. The street, however, was disposed to take a favorable view of the situation and the general feeling was bullish. Outside of professionals there was little doing and movements in the general list were for the most part without material significance, and the more prominent shares gave evidence of manipulation which was responsible for their larger fluctuations. New England was the feature of the day, followed in point of interest by Cotton Oil, which was very active but lost large portions of the advance of the past few days. Lake Shore was again weak, and with Michigan Central, Missouri Pacific and Norfolk and Western preferred showed the largest losses in active stocks. Terminal preferred and Lackawanna were very strong in the early dealings but gave way later, and the general list showed no further feature of note. Sales aggregated 217,000 shares.

NEW YORK, November 15.—[Special.]—Henry Clews & Co.'s circular says: Liverpool did not come as low this morning as was expected, and our market, under some buying orders, opened steady at an advance of four points. The advance was maintained for some time, but towards noon, Liverpool closing lower, together with a statement that Neil Bros. had out an estimate of a crop of 7,250,000 bales. The market sold down about six points from the highest. The fact of the publication of the statement was afterwards denied, and the market recovered four points, but the outside public were not aware of this denial, and selling orders came in freely, sending the price off to about the lowest point of the day. It is still a long market, and it seems necessary that a good portion of this interest shall be eliminated before an improvement can be made. Each break brings out cotton on stop orders, and it will not take much more decline to bring out sufficient long cotton to make the market a good purchase.

JOHN S. ERNEST.

NEW YORK, November 15—Hubbard, Price & Co., in their cotton circular to-day, say: Liverpool quotations this morning failed to show adequate response to our decline of yesterday, and thus encouraged our market, and opened at an advance, which was maintained during the morning hours and a strong tone prevailed. A better feeling, however, received a check on the announcement of a rumor that the crop was estimated at 7,100,000 to 7,250,000, and prices rapidly declined, but partially recovered on our receiving authoritative details, both from London and New Orleans, that such estimate had been made. The market closed barely steady, however, advantage being taken by bears of the interruption to business in consequence of the storm, to depress prices. The foreign demand has been particularly active today, the continent showing a ready willingness to supply its wants at present prices.

CHRISTOPHINE DIES.

THE ITALIAN FRUIT VENDER BREATHES HIS LAST.

The Licks Which He Received Monday Night Results in Death—The Slayer Still at Large.

Christophine, the Italian who sold fruit from a stand on Decatur street, died yesterkay from the wound which was inflicted Monday night.

Officers are now searching for the boys who killed the Italian.

On Monday night about eight o'clock or a little later, Christophine was standing behind his counter dealing out bananas, oranges and apples. He was attending strictly to his business, as he usually did, when two boys named Hanye and Spence passed. The boys began teasing Christophine. They yelled:

"Maccaroni!"

"Banan'!"

And many other sayings peculiar to the Italian talk were indulged in. Christophine finally lost his temper, and attempted to drive the boys away. Hanye had a heavy stick, with which he struck the Italian, and then a rock was hurled against his head. The licks knocked the Italian down, 'and the wounds were the cause of his death.

Immediately after the trouble, the two boys disappeared, and have since succeeded in evading the police, notwithstanding the fact that diligent search has been made for them. Yesterday afternoon Hanye was located near Grant's park, and was chased but got away.

The detectives are now working the matter.

Death, so the doctors in attendance say, was caused by compression and inflammation of the brain.

A rather curious fact is that so long a time elapsed before the inflammation took a serious form. The wound was made Monday night. Tuesday morning Christophine was at his stand and attended to his business regularly until Wednesday night. He complained just before going home that he had a severe headache, but it was not thought that the matter was serious. During the night he was restless and seemed to be suffering considerably. Yesterday morning about 9 o'clock he became unconscious.

Dr. Cofer and Dr. Peck held a consultation, and it was decided that an operation was necessary and Dr. Gaston was called in. He also agreed that this was the only hope and about 3 o'clock the operation was performed.

The fracture in the skull was somewhat over an inch long, on the left side of the forehead, just at the edge of the hair. The depressed portion of the skull covered at least one and one-half square inches, and the depression was very marked, being on an average about one-fourth of an inch thick.

Incision revealed the presence of a thick clot of blood upon the brain immediately beneath the depressed bone. The clot was thick and almost black in color. This was removed, and the depressed bone was raised, relieving the compression.

This was all that could be done, but the inflammation was in too advanced a stage to be checked, and about an hour later Mr. Christophine died.

The inquest will be held at 9:30 this morning.

The O. M. Mitchell Post Gives an Enjoyable Entertainment at Their Hall.

The O. M. Mitchell post, G. A. R., gave an enjoyable entertainment at their hall last evening, corner of Alabama and Whitehall streets.

The old soldiers called it a campfire, and around it in peaceful good fellowship the old veterans of both armies met with their wives add children, and spent a most pleasant evening.

Dr. Stone, the surgeon of the local post and chairman of the committee that arraigned for the campfire, was master of ceremonies.

General Lewis and Mr. J. C. Kimball made short addresses of welcome on behalf of the the Grand Army, and Comrade L. P. Hills gave a humorous recitation, "The Poetical Courtship."

Judge Calhoun and Colonel Newman replied for the confederate veterans.

An elegantly framed picture, representing a G. A. R. badge, was presented to the post by Comrade Shoals for Comrade Dunn, formerly a member of the O. M. Mitchell, No. 4, in Jacksonville, Fla., but now a refugee in Atlanta. The picture is a handsome and artistic piece of work, and will be given a prominent place in the hall.

Post Commander S. C. Morley accepted the gift and in behalf of his comrades thanked Comrade Dunn in a neat little speech.

After these exercises the guests were invited to an elegant oyster supper in the adjoining hall. The entire affair was informal and enjoyable throughout.

After the supper a social reunion was held in the G. A. R. hall, after which the meeting adjourned.

THE TAX COLLECTOR'S SHORTAGE.

The Examiners Make Their Report Yesterday to Comptroller General Wright.

Mr. Wilson's shortage, or so much of it as is due the state, has been officially announced as $20,258.13.

Messrs. W. F. Parkhurst and W. J. Wall, the accountants into whose hands the matter was placed by the grand jury, made their report yesterday to Comptroller General Wright.

The following table shows the distribution of the shortage:

1885	$ 47 46
1886	5,495 10
1887	4,188 22
1888	10,527 35

This is not the entire shortage, but only so much as is due the state. The shortage due Fulton county has not yet been determined.

PREPARE FOR THANKSGIVING DINNER

"A Feast of Reason and a Flow of Soul."

Did you ever stop to reflect, reader, how short life is? A few short years ago you were—not so old, and now while you live, and as Thanksgiving and Christmas, and the other holidays approach, prepare to enjoy yourselves. Think of mincemeat, plum pudding, turkeys, cranberries and such like, and if you are wise you will extract much more pleasure in the few short months you have allotted you upon earth. Of all the kindred pleasures we have upon earth aside from religion, home pleasures, etc., is a good substantial meal prepared with culinary taste and judgment from the many good things of all kinds to be found in a first class grocery store. For this end we have ordered this fall Gordon & Dilworth's extra quality preserves and mincemeat. It were impossible to exaggerate the quality of any of G. & D.'s manufacture.

Now, for dinner, or breakfast, if you desire, we offer at a discount all of our own importation, Fry's cocoas and chocolates, and let us assure you that the equal of these goods is hard to be found, while none excel. A cup of delightful cocoa is a treat enjoyed by all. During this week we will retail you these goods at jobbers prices. We are overbought on them and wish to unload, so now is your time.

Our fancy French prunes and dried apricots are of high flavor and quality this fall and deserve special mention. Cheap too, only 25 and 30 cents per pound. We have a small invoice also of fancy quality pitted cherries, nice for pies—the best dessert yet, except the large, fine, delicious, dried red raspberries we have. If you never have done so, come over and buy 1 pound and try a few of the delicacies and luxuries of life.

Eat while you live, for when you're dead you can't. We suppose this is an axiom, yet have heard of angel's food, and have the ingredients, too, of this very palatable dish here for earthly beings. We have to arrive Monday also, hams—dove hams, small, medium, large—from 5 to 14 pounds, only 15 cents per pound.

We have also a new thing in sweet pickles—gallon jars sweet pickles. Peaches one-half gallon, also. We have just received more of that fancy quality white New York cheese. Here is a bargain—we have 10 dozen assorted Ross' imported ginger ale, sarsapparilla, lemonade. They sell 20 cents per bottle. We will close them out by the dozen for $1.40, less than they should be wholesaled. All are palatable drinks and healthy. A few more 30 pound buckets of any kind of jelly for $1.50. Fancy quantity cooked corned beef, sliced, 15 cents per pound. Be sure of No. 90. HOYT & THORN.

Your Antidote is Just What You Say It is, and I Hope Every One Will Have an Opportunity to Try It.

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., January 4, 1888.—Dr. B. M. Woolley, Atlanta, Ga. My Dear Sir: I have been very negligent in this one duty. I can say that I have never varied one iota from your directions, and took your Antidote regular from first dose of Antidote. I never had the least desire or appetite for morphine, of which deadly drug I was a slave for three years previous to the above date, taking it three times daily. I was becoming such a victim to it that my life was a burthen to me, but am happy to say I am a free man today, and shall ever be thankful to you and your Antidote, and am ready to bear witness to its virtues at any time, and will correspond with any one who may wish to make a trial of your Antidote, for it is just what you say it is, and I do trust and pray that every one who is addicted to the awful habit of morphine may have an opportunity of getting relief in the way I did. Yours with many thanks, W. S. MITCHELL.

Specialist in all diseases of the Rectum, successfully treats Piles, Bleeding or Protruding, or Internal, and non bleeding, also Rectal Ulcers, Fissure, Fistula in Ano, and Anal Tumors, without the knife or any other torturing implements, and guarantees every case he accepts for treatment.

No Pains or Detention From Business.

The old regular treatment for Piles required chloroform, stretching of the sphincter muscles, and drawing down the tumors with hooks, when either the knife, ligature, clamp, cautery iron, screw crusher or dangerous caustics are used to remove them, the operation lasting an hour or more. Powerful opiates are then administered to ease the pain, compelling the patient to remain in bed for two or three weeks, with danger from secondary rhage, liability to ulceration, stricture and fistula, and much suffering during a protracted recovery.

Now Notice the Contrast.

This new and painless system of treating diseases of the rectum not only does away with all the so long employed by regular physicians, but insures a correct diagnosis, and offers to suffering humanity an entirely painless method more safe and certain in its results than the old and barbarous practices, and without any detention from ordinary occupations.

Sufferers from Rectal Diseases are requested to call and investigate this system.

NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS.

UNION MEETING OF THE RAILWAY CONDUCTORS.

Relics From the Wreck on the Air-Line—Kansas Legislation—Charges Against the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus.

Grand Chief Conductor Wheaton, of the order of Railway Conductors, will arrive in the city today.

Mr. Wheaton comes to Atlanta to preside over and attend the union meeting of the order of which he is the highest officer, which will be held in Atlanta tomorrow.

The delegates of the order will begin arriving today from the southern states which will be represented at this meeting, and it is expected that nearly two hundred will be in attendance.

The meeting is held for the purpose of discussing measures for the benefit of the order, and will be an interesting event in the history of the divisions represented. The session will be held at Odd Fellows' hall, corner of Alabama and Whitehall streets.

On Sunday evening the delegates will accept an excursion tendered them and go to Augusta via the Georgia railroad. They will visit the exposition on Monday, which has been named "Railroad Day," and it goes without saying, that they will have a good time.

A Paradise for Travelers.

Some excitement has arisen in railroad circles over the bill now drawn up and ready for presentation before the Kansas state legislature to regulate the operation and correct abuses of the Pullman car service. The bill regulates the price of berths at $2 per night and $3 per twenty-four hours. The upper berth, when vacant, must be closed to aid ventilation, and the maximum wages of the porter is fixed at $2.50 per day instead of $12 per week, the former rate, while it makes it a misdemeanor for the porter to accept any "tips" or remuneration for services rendered from the passengers. The measure also deals with the through and local tariffs of the service, and wherever any discrepancies have appeared a remedy has been proposed. Heretofore it was possible for a passenger traveling any distance to beat the through rate by several dollars by taking the local rates for the same accommodations. On hiring porters the company has considered the "tips" received from passengers as an item in the salary paid, and as a consequence has forced many impositions upon the traveling public.

From Ocean to Ocean.

The railway lines running between here and Council Bluffs have served notice on each other that they will not be bound by the present "time agreement" after January 11th, and this notice is said to be the forerunner of a revolution in the running time of trains between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. An arrangement is pending between the Northern Pacific and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe for through trains west from Chicago, and the Union Pacific will meet this by arranging with one of the Missouri river lines for through trains between here and Ogden. With the advent of fast trains west of Chicago it is certain that one of them will be made a solid limited train from New York to San Francisco, thus carrying out the European-Asiatic express project which has been agitated. The first of these changes will go into effect December 5th.

Quick Justice to a Defaulter.

Louis H. Sloanaker, defaulting cashier of the Chicago and Northwestern railway company at Sioux City, Ia., who fled to Canada, was brought back by the American Surety company, of New York, who bonded him, and was prosecuted by them. He has been sentenced to serve three years in the penitentiary at Fort Madison, where he now is. This case beats the record as regards the prompt administration of justice, and shows that the public is not entirely at the mercy of thieves in consequence of the existing extradition arrangements with Canada. The culprit fled from Sioux City to Canada the 9th of October, was brought back a week ago and taken to the penitentiary yesterday. This was railroad justice and it got there on time.

Charges of Discrimination.

The Chattanooga Times is severely criticising the management of the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus road. That paper claims that Chattanooga is discriminated against in every way to the advantage of Rome, and charges that the train service is insufficient and the schedules badly arranged. The Times says the business men of Chattanooga subscribed $100,000 towards the building of the road and demands that the road give some return. The Times makes out a lengthy bill of complaint, but the other side has not been heard from as yet.

"Who's Afraid."

This is the title of one of the most unique and attractive illustrated calendar advertisements ever gotten up. It is issued by the passenger department of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, and so great was the demand for copies from all over the country that a price, covering the cost of issue, has been placed upon them. The scene of the illustration is a "life study," representing three bare-legged youngsters who are at the edge of the ocean surf, and the smallest of the trio, with her little dress above high water mark, asks the question, "who's afraid" of her larger but more timid companions. Mr. L. J. Ellis, of the East Tennessee, will be pleased to exhibit his copy of this attractive calendar card to his friends.

Relics of the Wreck.

Commissioner Slaughter, who has just returned from a trip to New York and Virginia points, tells of two relics from the recent wreck on the Air-Line. One is a watch, evidently the property of a lady passenger of the burned sleeper "Swannanoa." It is melted into a mass of metal, and only from its shape and the outline of the movement could it be recognized as a watch. The other relic was a beautiful ebony cross. It was found near the watch, but was scarcely injured, and the filigree work was only slightly scorched.

The Illinois Central May Come South.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., November 15.—[Special.]—President Fish, Vice-President Mann and Director Lettgen, of the Illinois Central railroad, arrived in this city this evening in the president's private car. In regard to the rumor that his road contemplated building a branch road to this city, President Fish said they might do so in the future, but nothing of the kind has ever been discussed. The party will leave for Memphis tomorrow evening.

The Last Payment.

The associated press telegram from New York says:

President Inman, of the Richmond Terminal, says his company will today deposit $3,950,000 with the Central Trust company, to meet their last payment on stock of the Georgia company, though it is not due for five weeks yet. This will give the Richmond Terminal control of the Central Railroad and Banking company of Georgia.

AN INTELLECTUAL JOUST.

A Chess Match Which Will Excite Much Interest Among Devotees of the Game.

The members of the Atlanta Chess and Checker club are deeply interested in a match between Professor A. F. Wurm and Mr. I. E. Orchard, which will decide which of these gentlemen is the better player. He who shall prove victorious in this trial of skill will be declared chess champion of the club. The two players are evenly matched, and it is problematical which will win. Both are in excellent form, and it is reasonable to expect hard fought, brilliant and interesting games.

The match will consist of five won games, draws not to count. As the games will be played in the rooms of the Chess and Checker club, all persons who desire to witness the match are invited to be present.

"These players," said a member of the chess club, "rank high among the players of the United States. They are the antithesis of each other. Their styles are as dissimilar as are those of Paulson and McKenzie. Professor Wurm is accurate, far seeing, methodical and cautious. Mr. Orchard is just the opposite. He is impetuous, dashing and highly ingenious. He frequently carries the day by a Napoleonic coup; his adversary generally wins by a laborious and defensive method. Both players are deeply versed in the theory of the game, and are au fait in all the openings, being thoroughly familiar with all the attacks and defenses as elaborated by the best analysts. The contests are certain to be exceedingly close and interesting. In their last match, played a little more than a year ago, Professor Wurm was victorious. His adversary is, however, in far better practice now than he was at that time. Each combatant is backed by many friends, who confidently expect he will win."

The rooms of the club are in the Centennial building, in the rear of Mr. Walter Brown's office.

SCANLAN TONIGHT.

This brilliant Irish comedian will appear this evening in his new play, "Shane-na-Lawn," which has achieved great success wherever produced. Mr. Scanlan now occupies the position of one of the finest Irish comedians on the American stage, and many regard him as the leading Irish actor of the day. Combining a handsome figure and face with a pleasing voice and ability to act, he has won great popularity, and is now reckoned as one of the most profitable attractions that visit the city.

Concerning Mr. Scanlan's new play there is unanimity of praise. The play is Hibernian in conception and Hibernian in execution. None but Irish characters appear and none but Irish scenery, but Irishmen and Irishwomen are portrayed with the charm of the mystic atmosphere of the Emerald isle above and around them. Shane is the central figure because his role is played by Scanlan.

"Shane" is the shrewd, witty, honest, manly and independent young Irishman, who may be regarded as a type of the best that his nationality produces. He has written several new songs, among them, "Why Paddy is Always Poor," and "Gathering the Myrtle with Mary," which he will sing. The costumes are new and historically correct.

Jim, the Penman.

A. M. Palmer's name, used in connection with a dramatic performance, carries with it a certain guaranty of artistic fullness and of substantial merit that makes it easy to predict success for any of his enterprises.

In speaking of "Jim, the Penman," moreover, to descend from the general to the particular, the element of doubt cuts no figure. Its success is known, its merits incontestable. It has won the approval of cultured audiences in the various large cities of the country. Mr. Palmer's company comprises F. C. Bangs, Wright Huntington, J. L. Ottomeyer, Guy Lindsley, Hardee Kirkland, Miss F. C. Jackson, Mary Sanders, Vida Croley, Jennie Eustace and May Brookyn.

THE HOUSE MAJORITY

THE QUESTION STILL INVOLVED IN DOUBT.

THE MAJORITY CLOSE EITHER WAY

Indiana Shows a Gain of Four Democratic Congressmen—A Democratic Loss In California.

WASHINGTON, November 16.—General John B. Clark, Jr., clerk of the house of representatives, believes that 160 democratic representatives have been elected, and that six districts are in doubt. This calculation is based upon the assumption that Wilson (democratic) is elected in West Virginia. The doubtful of General Clark's estimates are, the first California, tenth Kentucky, second North Carolina, and first, third and fourth West Virginia. These districts he sets down as doubtful because they are claimed by both parties on small majorities, so small that the official count must be awaited to determine the result. In the case of Representative Bacon (democratic), of New York, who is reported to have been defeated by eighty majority, General Clark expects that a contest will ensue. Of one thing he is confident, and that is that the majority of the next house will not be over five either way.

Relative to the functions of the clerk in the organization of the new house, and the power he is supposed to be able to exercise in seating or unseating members, General Clark says that his duties are fixed by statute, and are purely ministerial. If a member elect presents a proper certificate of election, his name will be placed on the roll and not otherwise. There cannot be duplicate certificates, because there are at present no dual state governments, as there have been in time past in the south. General Clark said that from the official records before him, it appeared that the republicans had elected a majority of one in the next house, and this was because up to the present time but one certificate had been presented to him, namely that of Representative Herman, of Oregon. Certificates are unusually long time coming in, as they are not issued until some time after the official returns are made public. In the case of Missouri this does not take place until January, and in many other state the date is equally remote from election day. The reduction of claims of both parties to very narrow majorities of from three to five or eight suggests interesting possibilities, when it is remembered that no less than six persons who were elected to the forty-ninth congress died either before they had been sworn in or after they had taken their seats, and that there is a strong probability there will be some deaths among 325 men of mature years during the long period, thirteen months, intervening between election day and the assemblage of the new congress.

Senator Quay, chairman of the republican national committee, said to an associated press reporter this afternoon that the republicans would certainly have control of the next house of representatives by a majority of five, and that their majority might be nine. There were several doubtful districts, the result in which he said would determine whether their majority would be the higher or lower figure given. Mr. Quay declined for the present to give any particulars upon which his figures were based or to state what districts were still regarded as doubtful.

INDIANA'S CONGRESSMEN.

The Democrats Gain Four on the Last Delegation.

INDIANAPOLIS, November 16.—The footings of the official returns of the congressional vote of Indiana were completed at a late hour tonight. The delegations stands ten democrats to three republicans, a democratic gain of four congressmen. In the first, eighth, eleventh and twelfth districts the following are the official pluralities: First district—Parrett, democratic, over Posey, republican, plurality 20; second district—O'Neill, democratic, over Braxton, republican, 884; third district—Brown, democrat, over Sayles, republican, 3,074; fourth district, Holman, democrat, over Wilson, republican, 738; fifth district, Cooper, democrat, over Duncan, republican, 704; sixth district, Brown, republican, over Morris, democrat, 6,372; seventh district, Bynum, democrat, over Chandler, republican, 1,727; eighth district, Brookshire, democrat, over Johnson, republican, 69; ninth district, Cheadle, republican, over McCabe, democrat, 4,450; tenth district, Owen, republican, over Zimmerman, democrat, 1,156; eleventh district, Martin, democrat, over Steele, republican, 475; twelfth district, McClellan, democrat, over White, republican, 1,111; thirteenth district, Shively, democrat, over Haynes, republican, 355.

The total congressional vote of Indiana is 532,997, divided as follows: Republicans, 261-756; democrats, 259,985; prohibition, 9,252; labor, 2,004. The republican congressional plurality is 1,771. The prohibitionists had no candidates in the fourth district, and the labor party had none in the 7th and 13th, so that the above figures do not give the full voting strength of these parties, as will be shown by the electoral vote.

THE AMENDMENT ADOPTED.

Rhode Island Concludes to Let More Citizens Vote.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., November 16.—Today the governor, secretary of state and attorney-general officially counted the votes cast last April on what is known as the Bourn amendment to the constitution. This amendment is numbered seven, and enfranchises every citizen of the United States of the age of twenty-one years who has had his residence and home in this state for two years, and in the town or city in which he may offer to vote six months next preceding the time of voting. It abolishes the property qualification for voting for general officers. The vote was: Approve, 20,068; reject, 12,193; majority over three-fifths of the total vote necessary for its adoption, 711.

A Close Contest in Iowa.

DES MOINES, Ia., November 16.—Official returns received by the secretary of state today settles the closest election contest in the history of Iowa. Out of a total vote of over 400,000, Peter A. Day (democratic) has about 500 majority over John Manner (republican), candidates for railroad commissioner. The other republicans, Smith and Campbell, have majorities. It is thirty-one years since a democrat was elected to any state office in Iowa.

The North Carolina Election.

RALEIGH, N. C., November 16.—[Special.] Complete official election returns have been received from eighty-five counties in the state. In the gubernatorial vote, they show a democratic majority of 12,231. Eleven counties have not sent in official reports, but their respective majorities have been reported and show a net democratic majority of 965. This, added to the official majority of the eighty-five counties, make the total democratic majority 13,139. The democratic majority in 1884 was 20,120. An interesting feature is that the democrats lost in sections heretofore democratic and gained in republican sections.

Kentucky's Vote.

LOUISVILLE, November 16.—Returns from all but three small counties in this state give Cleveland 181,394; Harrison, 153,732; Cleveland's plurality, 27,662. The remaining counties will make the democratic plurality about 28,000. The total vote is the largest ever cast in Kentucky.

Thompson Concedes His Defeat.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., November 16.—Thompson, democrat, in his paper, the Somona Democrat, editorially concedes his defeat for re-election in the first congressional district in his state. His successor, DeHaven, is a republican.

Republican Jubilations.

HARRISBURG, November 16.—Republicans of the county met here tonight and celebrated the election of Harrison and Morton. About 1,500 were in line with torches, banners and transparencies There was also a display of fireworks.

The Republican Headquarters Closed.

NEW YORK, November 16.—The republican national committee closed its headquarters at No. 91 Fifth avenue today.

Guayaquil is Shaking.

GUAYAQUIL, November 16.—A very heavy shock of earthquake was experienced here today at 2:35 p. m. The people fled from their houses, thoroughly panic stricken.
